Fire Chills Campus At Berrien Springs

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau
BERRIEN SPRINGS — Fire swept through a sawdust storage building and an adjoining heating plant on the Andrews university campus here yesterday afternoon, causing an estimated $50,000 damage and temporarily disrupting heat service to most of the school's buildings.

Products, was gutted by the blaze. Smith said the adjoining Plant Services building was damaged in the boiler room area, but flames did not spread to a second story furniture storage area or to maintenance services offices. University officials initially estimated damage to both structures at $50,000, Smith said. Students passing by the Grove street structure noticed smoke pouring from the building and called police to report the fire about 3:15 p.m. yesterday. Smith said. He said flames were coming from the heat plant building windows by the time firemen arrived. The fire melted electrical wiring to all four boilers that provide steam heat for most campus buildings, and temporarily left the structures without heat, Smith said. George John, Berrien Springs village-Oronoko township policeman, said university officials were able to rewire one of the boilers several hours after the fire and heat to campus buildings was restored.

Repair work on the remaining three boilers will take longer, John said.

Cause of the blaze has not been determined, but both police and firemen said that a small fire was reported to have occurred earlier in the day in one of two farm wagons parked in the wood and sheet metal

Mrs. Ford Says Jobs Not Dole Needed

Publisher:
Dear Sir:

In the course of implementing the program of work mandated by the board of directors of Berrien County Action, namely, securing funds for projects that will reduce the causes and alleviate the results of poverty in Berrien County, one of the acknowledged risks that I am prepared to take is the disfavor of the powerful and influential who might consider this action an infringement upon their traditional preserves of power.

If the people who denigrate the efforts of the antipoverty agency would consider fair and equal employment, fair housing opportunities, and some moderate form of control of their political oppression of this isolated community, perhaps the work of the antipoverty agency would not be so compelling and so far from being a duplication of effort. What effort has been expended by the powerful majority to alleviate these ills? None that can be seen. The pattern as far as I can discern has been to contain, intimidate and ignore the poor, black and white, and to place the blame for unemployment on the unemployed, rather than on the institutions, including governmental units, that refuse to hire those who do not fit their concept.

It is the responsibility of the antipoverty agency to serve as advocate — and this is never a popular position. The rash of complaints from the agencies who have not been formerly called to account points out that perhaps they have not done as "outstanding" a job as they have led the newspaper to believe. In fact, I am aware of more instances where they have not done as federal law would dictate than where they have. These facts are among the reasons that Berrien County Action has decided to supplement the efforts of the health department and the planned parenthood association with a teen outreach family planning project. The other reason is that rather than grabbing funds from them we are exercising our legal right to determine what to do with monies that are specifically earmarked for Berrien County Action, and have always been earmarked for Berrien County Action. During the course of the charges put out by certain governmental queen bees it was ignored that the money was not being grabbed at by BCA, but rather by greedy agencies to whom BCA has constantly contracted out certain services, but who would only receive a portion, rather than the whole amount this time. The facts have been distorted by emotionalism and by shrewd long-time power brokers who are affronted that poor people would dare not obey.

Berrien County Government has used the problems of Benton Harbor in its needs assessment in order to obtain funding for the county, then disregarded the obligation to involve Benton Harbor people in the planning, design, implementation and evaluation of the programs that their problems providing funding to resolve.

Berrien County Government has the responsibility to appoint minorities on all boards and commissions and committees

Mrs. Helen Ford, executive director of Berrien County Action, and Berrien County Commissioner Bill Joseph have written replies to an editorial published Thursday, Oct. 16, in The Herald-Palladium.

The editorial, "County Board Majority Tells It Like It Is," commended the majority of the Berrien county board of commissioners, who voted 11 to 2 a resolution countering charges of discrimination in distribution of federal funds.

The resolution also condemned "attacks on Berrien county and its officials in weekly performance of the Benton Harbor city commission."

Bill Joseph is a brother of Benton Harbor Mayor Charles Joseph. Mrs. Ford, whose anti-poverty agency seeks federal funds, is a running mate of Mayor Joseph on the Clean Slate ticket in the Nov. 4 city election.

The complete texts of the letters from Mrs. Ford and Commissioner Joseph are published herewith.

Police Doubt Body Hoffa's

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Severed, mutilated remains of a middleage man continued to baffle authorities here as they seek clues to his identity and death. Authorities discounted speculation that the two hands and a foot found in a trash dump belonged to former Teamsters Union President James Hoffa.

"We don't believe it is Hoffa, but we are checking just to be sure," said Sgt. William Coen of the Pima County Sheriff's Homicide Division.

A preliminary check on partial fingerprint samples of Hoffa failed to show any connection, but more detailed prints were to be sent here today, said Coen and FBI Agent Roger Young.

The remains were initially thought to be in a brown paper bag with markings of a store known as "Food Land."

In Detroit, a man identifying himself as the manager of a Food Land store there, Howard Hughes, said Hoffa shopped there two years ago.

The former Teamsters chief bought $75 to $85 of liquor and tipped Hughes $20 and a souvenir pen inscribed "From Jimmy," Hughes said.

He said the store is about eight miles from where Hoffa was last seen July 31.

However, Detroit telephone books list just one Food Land

The Ultimate Slur

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A handful of demonstrators, protesting the quality of meals served by fast-food chains, vomited in the lobby of a local McDonald's during the peak lunch hour Friday.

The assistant manager of the Maynard Street McDonald's, Scott Kavalick, said the 10-minute demonstration sent several patrons scurrying from the restaurant, which was packed at the time.

Kavalick said about six to 10 persons took part in the protest. He said they swallowed "some kind of solution" which induced vomiting.

"They made quite a scene," he said. "It shocked me. I've never seen anything like this before."

A spokesman for the group, the Radical Vegetarian Front, claimed 25 to 30 persons took part in the demonstration.

"We're trying to draw attention to the vertical integration of the American food industry by large corporations beyond the reach of the American people," said Phil Cushman.

"We're also protesting the poor quality of food served in places like this and the fact that fast food chains go into local communities and drive out small, independent restaurants."

Kavalick said the demonstrators left voluntarily.

In addition, the county has a moral obligation to be fair in its dealings with minorities and poor and women. They ignore the fact that most of the dollars they got were on the basis of need known to exist in Benton Harbor. When they get the money they sit like kings doing out to all "39" municipalities, however little the other 38 may have been included in the needs analysis. This is morally wrong. Benton Township and Benton Harbor make-up the largest population concentration where

Side Sniping At Medical Malpractice Plan

Earlier in the year the Michigan Medical Society launched a blitzkrieg against the state's lawyers to dramatize the skyrocketing costs in malpractice insurance and as one means to cushion a growing financial peril in practicing medicine.

The gist of the barrage was to the effect that the contingent-fee system whereby a successful lawyer for the plaintiff shares from a quarter to a half of the verdict was pushing doctors and hospitals to the wall.

The State Bar of Michigan replied with restrained heat. Its then president, Steve Bransdorfer, of Grand Rapids, said there is a problem, that a solution must be found and that the number of ambulance chasers in the Bar's ranks is but a needle-thin fraction of what the doctors were claiming.

One solution put forth by the Society called for compulsory arbitration of malpractice claims. The Michigan medicals patterned their system on one recently adopted in Indiana.

The lawyers responded vigorously against taking a malpractice case out of the courts and away from the juries.

While this professional squabble did not generate the same heat in the legislature, which in the final analysis would have to adopt any system different than the traditional concept of Patient A suing Doctor B, there was strong bipartisan agreement among the solons that something better be done or just maybe the doctors and hospitals would fold their tents.

From that concern emerged a number of bills, signed into law by Governor Milliken, designed to slow down the escalating malpractice cost.

One of them is voluntary arbitration between patient and doctor or hospital.

Its upstairs management is put in the hands of an Arbitration Advisory Committee appointed by the State Insurance Commissioner. The statute specifies the membership in general terms, that is, in the context of a doctor-lawyer-non medic or legal person ration, and leaves it to the Commissioner to make the selections.

The Commissioner chose as one lawyer nominee Milton Franck, the State Bar's executive director.

He did not appoint any other lawyer who is identifiable as a plaintiff's attorney.

This has instilled a backlash from a few lawyers specializing in tort cases (civil wrongs).

They are urging concerted against the Commission and arbitration.

The absence of a plaintiff lawyer, they contend, loads the dice against deserving patients.

Since the Commission itself does not hear cases and is confined to appointing the local arbitration panels who do go through the evidence and setting guidelines for the entire process, this bleat is crying foul before being hit.

In a strongly worded editorial in the State Bar Journal's October issue, Franck similarly castigated this premature criticism.

For appearance's sake the Commissioner probably should have appointed a plaintiff's attorney. That he did not, notes Franck, is no reason to assume the Commission is taking off on a tack prejudicial to patients and cozy to the medical profession. To date, he continues, his contact with the Commission's workings indicates a scrupulous effort to steer a middle course.

More to the point, he writes:

"Should these attacks continue, then if arbitration fails, for any reason, lawyers will once again become targets for a blizzard of publicity painting them as the villains who undermined it. And this time our detractors will have our own words, to sanctify their charge."

"This, it can be predicted with unhappy confidence, will send the legislature back to the drawing board to 'tighten up' the medical malpractice statutes. One need only examine the 'malpractice crisis' legislation already enacted in some other states to recognize the inequities which will befall the rights of our clients should that occur."

In a word, overpleading a case can lose it.

CONCURS COMPLETELY WITH EDITORIAL

Editor,
In concur completely with your editorial of last night in which you defended the Berrien County Sheriff's Department SWAT team.

Citizens who may be alarmed over the SWAT concept should take the time to investigate SWAT activities thoroughly. They will find that SWAT saves the day in one tight situation after another. They will find that SWAT is an insurance policy which, while hopefully never needed, can protect the lives and property of citizens quickly and efficiently when necessary.

Under the capable, level-headed supervision of Sheriff Nick Jewell, the Berrien County Sheriff's Department SWAT team is one more step toward making our county a safer place to live.

SAYS GUN CONTROL LAW ISN'T ANSWER

Editor,
Your Oct. 14, 1975, edition showed the death of a Benton Township resident, due to gunshot wound, in bold headline. On page 10 of the same edition you showed a picture of the Rev. Richard Engle, pastor of a Columbus, Ohio, church, who was instrumental in having his parishioners turning in their guns on Sunday, Oct. 12, which are to be melted down into crosses that will be distributed to congressmen, along with gun control petitions signed by parishioners.

Also on page 13, a small article told of the death of a youth from sniffling underarm deodorant.

My rationale for comparing these stories is, if guns are to be outlawed as death inflicting instruments, why not underarm deodorant sprays, any other spray capable of causing death, knives, ropes (even pantyhose and nylon stockings make good garrots), all drugs, including alcohol, hammers, axes, cars and infinitum.

The thought behind the showmanship of turning guns into crosses is certainly commendable and noble, especially for citizens who respect and treat their fellow human beings as much as they themselves wish to be respected and kept from harm, but they seem to ignore reality. Reality being the fact that it is not the gun in the hand of the law abiding citizen that we must fear, but the guns in the hands of the criminal element and sub-humans amongst us.

It is estimated that 40 million handguns are in the homes of Americans. This massive inventory of privately held weapons seems to tell the story that the average citizen no longer has confidence in the ability of those in authority (government) to protect his/her life, liberty and property. We supposedly have the right to life, liberty and equality, and many lives have been sacrificed in the pursuit of these ideals. Do we not also have the right to protect the same?

Another long forward step in the picture service of The News-Palladium was inaugurated today. It was the Associated Press wirephoto service — "the miracle of the picture age." In a specially prepared dark room in The News-Palladium's photographic department, Chief Photographer Charles Zindler fastened a small sheet of special photographic paper to a cylinder, touched a button and over a telephone wire hooked directly into the Associated Press offices in Chicago electrical impulses began translating an actual photograph to the positive print. It took exactly eight minutes to perform this miracle of picture transmission.

Benton Harbor is well represented in collegiate sports this season, with several men in the big ten running, and many in the smaller colleges of the state. Those playing for big ten schools include "Teener" Edmunds of Benton Harbor high school fame, who is on the varsity squad at Northwestern University. Calderwood and Ray Null are freshmen at Evanston and are giving good account of themselves there. Clayton Weber is holding one of the flank positions for Purdue, and Les Pouty is the star quarter at Michigan State college. Leo West, of St. Joe, is one of the survivors of the recent cut on the Michigan University Freshman squad.

Interpol Shielding Nazi Fugitives?

WASHINGTON — It's never been a secret that shortly before and all during World War II German authorities entertained notions of establishing a worldwide secret police as a means of annihilating, or at least neutralizing, the enemies of the Third Reich. What has been secret, at least until recently, is the fact the Nazis considered the famed International Criminal Police Organization (cable name: Interpol) as an ally in the terrible scheme.

The truth has remained shrouded over the decades because of private interests and public indifference. Interpol, a private police agency with quasi public offices, in 120 nations including America, has never been wont to color its image with candid references to a Nazi past. And the public, fed only on the heroics of these cops of many nations, has never before felt it necessary to suspect Interpol was anything other than its purified propaganda claimed it to be.

Now the particulars of the Interpol legacy are beginning to emerge, and with them growing official nervousness about not only what Interpol was, but is. The suspicions, rooted out by an extensive but obscure investigation by the Church of Scientology, once a target of an Interpol probe itself, have been picked up by several U.S. lawmakers. Joshua Ellberg of Pennsylvania, for one, has announced his own probe into Interpol, an aide saying the congressman is "very, very interested in Interpol's ties to the Nazis."

The ties, long minimized by Interpol headquarters in Paris, and more recently by Interpol USA in Washington, are undeniable.

Though the organization was conceived (in 1924) as a non-political, international police liaison entity, it was in the following decade dominated increasingly by German officials. In 1938 a Gestapo colonel named Otto Steinhausl was elevated to Interpol's presidency. In 1940 Interpol adopted a German decree that henceforth "all requests to the Internationale Kriminalpolizei and replies have to pass the Reichskriminalpolizei." In 1942 the Interpol headquarters, now merely a Hitler tool (and with American membership withdrawn), was moved near Berlin.

The list of Interpol leaders from then on through the war reads like a who's who of hate mongers: Reinhard Heydrich (The Hangman), who was killed either by Czechoslovak patriots or perhaps fellow Nazis who felt his influence was growing too large; Arthur Nebe, an SS general and operator of one of the infamous "mobile execution units" who has not been accounted for since the war; Ernst Kaltenbrunner, chief of the fanatical SD and hanged by court verdict after Nuremberg.

But Interpol's Nazi connection, sadly, did not end with the Allied victory in 1945. Even though America had renewed its membership in the network, the organization as late as 1971 was led by a one time SS officer named Paul Dickopf, and is currently directed by an alleged wartime member of the Nazi-dominated French Surete Nationale.

The past, of course, is not necessary prologue. But Interpol's reluctance to discuss it, indeed its actions to cover it up, is unsettling, even worrisome. Rep. Edward Beard, D-RI, has characterized the fears publicly, and well, by wondering if the Nazi domination of Interpol decades ago affects its philosophies even today.

One U.S. Agency Doing Good Job

People in general are down on Washington these days and with good reason, but I would like to report on one Federal agency in which things have actually been going very well for the past several years.

Certainly Washington richly deserves its current status as one of our three great negative symbols, the other two being New York and Berkeley. Berkeley, home of the Free Speech Movement and the SLA, is our cultural nightmare. New York is our financial nightmare. And Washington...

In view of all that, it is a pleasure to report that in one Federal agency, the National Endowment for the Humanities (NEH), the best interests of the republic have been admirably served; a fact I know at first hand as a member of a sort of overseeing board at the Endowment. As Federal agencies go, NEH is small, even tiny, no doubt an important point in its favor. It disposes of something in the neighborhood of $100 million per year, with the aim of supporting worthwhile research, public exhibitions, adult education, and the like.

When the present national chairman, Dr. Ronald Berman, took over five years ago, NEH was suffering from a case of the bends brought on by the counter-culture of the 1960s. Federal funds had been going far too often to faddist ideas rather than good ones.

Dr. Berman put a quick stop to all that. He himself is a tough-minded, articulate Yale Ph.D. He had taught at several first-rate universities and published several scholarly books. He knew obvious nonsense when he saw it. Above all, he had a sense of what Western culture is all about; and American culture as part of Western culture.

Under his direction, standards were quickly tightened, and, in consequence, staff morale rose. NEH, by insisting on genuine scholarship, was doing its part to raise standards everywhere.

If all Federal agencies performed this well, Washington would not have a bad name. President Ford could stay home. If an equivalent of Berman could be found and put in charge at the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, it would be a blessing for the republic.

Of course, no human institution is perfect, and NEH recently became the target of some short criticism for what is known at the Endowment as "that reading list." Admittedly, the list is an Edsel, almost a B-1 bomber. What happened was that the Endowment gave a grant to the American Library Association for the purpose of producing an extensive list of books on American historical and political themes for the Bicentennial. The list is uneven, but also heavily faddist — left-revisionist on foreign policy, chiefly anti-business. A loser.

In spite of an isolated failure like that, however, the Endowment is in excellent hands and doing a commendable job.

Bigger Spending Cuts Needed--Hutchinson

CONGRESSMAN HITS BIG GOVERNMENT

By MIKE WYNGARDEN
Staff Writer
U.S. Rep. Edward Hutchinson (R-St. Joseph) yesterday called President Ford's proposal to link a $28 billion tax cut with a matching cut in federal spending "a step in the right direction," but claimed the federal spending cut was not nearly enough.

Hutchinson addressed the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce on a host of issues at a breakfast meeting yesterday at the Benton Harbor Holiday Inn.

In what was a continuing theme throughout Hutchinson's address, he said: "Government today is too big and is getting completely out of hand. Somehow we have to get the government back in line."

The ranking minority member of the House noted that the U.S. government reached an all-time high of peacetime spending of $100 billion for the fiscal year of 1963. It doubled to $200 billion in 1970, Hutchinson said, and by 1977, will be more than $400 billion.

"The economy just hasn't been going like that," Hutchinson said. "The federal government has been taking a greater and greater percentage of the gross national product."

For that reason, Hutchinson said he "strongly supported" Ford's proposed spending cut as "at least a balancing act" and "deplored" observations by Congressmen that it couldn't be done. "It has to be done," was Hutchinson's answer.

Touching on other issues, Hutchinson warned that federal funding to bail out nearly-bankrupt New York City would set a "dangerous precedent." When asked if Congress would supply funds for New York, Hutchinson's reply was "not with my vote, they won't." He said New York City's problem was that "municipal unions are running the town" and that the city "was giving in to pressures and spending way beyond its means."

Hutchinson also explained his vote against stationing 200 American technicians in the Middle East as part of the Middle East peace accord. "I just couldn't bring myself to start down that road again — not after what we learned from Vietnam."

Twin Cities Chamber Honors Four For Work In Welfare Reform

The Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce presented certificates to four community leaders yesterday for their work in welfare reform. "Chamber officers, the board of directors and members recognize with appreciation, the dedication, efforts and contributions in ... finding workable solutions to ... the increasing growth of welfare recipients in the Twin Cities area," Banyon said in reading the resolution commending the four.

BH Man $10,000 Winner

By ALAN AREND
Staff Writer

A 24-year-old Benton Harbor man has won $10,000 in the state lottery's instant winner game.

Dennis Outlaw of 390 Broadway, an apprentice millwright at Auto Specialties' Riverside plant, purchased his winning ticket at Mamma's bar, Territorial road, Benton Harbor, on Tuesday night.

Outlaw said he played the new instant winner game "a lot of times" during the game's first week, but then quit purchasing the tickets.

He said he decided to purchase five more tickets last Tuesday night, and the first ticket he scratched off was the big winner. Two other of the five tickets were $2 winners, he said. He is the second Twin City resident to win $10,000 in the new instant winner lottery game. Thomas M. Smith, 35, of 3418 Knox street, St. Joseph, was the first.

Outlaw, and his wife, Sandra, are the parents of three young children.

Outlaw, who has worked at

Auto Specialties for the past six years, said he plans on paying some bills with his winnings, but hasn't decided what he'll do with the rest of the money.

State lottery officials said Outlaw could expect to receive his check in the mail in about three to four weeks.

Benton Police Schedule Hunter Safety Program

The Benton township police department will sponsor a gun and hunter safety program Oct. 20, 21, and 22 for youths between the ages of 11 and 16. Det. David Parsons said any youth in the area is eligible to attend the classes that will be held from 7 to 9 p.m. at the department. All three classes must be attended to receive certification from the Department of Natural Resources, Parsons said.

Benton Harbor Mayor Charles F. Joseph Friday called for establishment of a legally constituted port commission by the Cities of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph and the County of Berrien.

Joseph said a joint port commission, created by ordinance, is the "logical means" to pursue port development, harbor maintenance and determining a storage area for dumping of harbor dredgings.

Joseph spoke at a meeting of the present Twin Cities port commission attended by St. Joseph Mayor Franklin Smith and regional and county planners in the courthouse.

The present port commission is an advisory group named by the city commissions of Benton Harbor and St. Joseph.

The Twin Cities inner harbor has not been dredged for several years because dumping of polluted harbor dredgings in Lake Michigan is prohibited.

Joseph said a joint port commission, created by ordinance, would be the logical body to acquire an area for storage of dredgings.

A 32-acre tract on St. Joseph's Radio island has been determined as the most adequate site for harbor dredgings. But it is privately owned.

Until the a long range site is acquired, Joseph suggested the old Benton Harbor ship canal as an interim site for the dredgings. This was stated in a unanimous resolution of the Benton Harbor city commission last April 28.

Joseph also suggested that himself, Mayor Smith and County Commissioner R. J. Burkholz form a committee with staff assistance to draft an ordinance on a port commission.

Burkholz said Joseph's proposals appear "realistic and show concern for the community."

Dowagiac Man Shot Twice By Robbers

DOWAGIAC — A 52-year-old rural Dowagiac man was shot twice in the stomach last night after refusing to give in to the demands of two would-be robbers, according to Cass county sheriff's deputies.

Joseph Merrill of Atwood road in Wayne township, was listed in guarded condition this morning in the intensive care unit of Lee Memorial hospital, Dowagiac.

Deputies said Merrill, an employee of the Checker service station, Dowagiac, had returned home from work about 10:10 p.m., when he was confronted by two black males who demanded his money. Deputies said Merrill told officers he refused to give the pair his money, and was shot twice in the stomach.

Deputies said the attempted armed robbery remains under investigation, but apparently the pair fled without getting any money.

$200 Million State Deficit Seen

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — House Republicans were told Friday the deficit on the current state budget "would exceed $200 million," according to House GOP leader Dennis Cawthorne. Cawthorne said budget director Gerald Miller gave the House members the bad news at a day-long caucus, and said Republicans responded with "considerable dismay" to the figure.

Cawthorne said House Republicans agreed Friday that raising state taxes was not the way to erase the deficit, but that state agencies and universities "will have to tighten their belts, as the average citizens are tightening theirs."

"We declare our unequivocal opposition to any state tax increases through at least 1975 and 1976," a Republican position paper said.

Cawthorne said the caucus "believed that position accurately reflected the public's sentiment" against added taxes, despite expected cutbacks in service and educational quality that could result from funding cuts expected soon from Gov. William Milliken.

The caucus position indicates House Republicans would oppose a Senate bill introduced this week by Sen. Billy Huffman to raise the state income tax by three-tenths of a per cent to 4.9 per cent.

Huffman, a Madison Heights Democrat, said his colleagues would see the wisdom of the bill when faced with painful spending cuts necessary to balance the $3.04 billion state budget.

The governor is expected to order the cutbacks after conferring with House and Senate Democratic leaders. The cuts must be approved by the House and Senate appropriations committees before they can be instituted.

Cawthorne also charged that the governor's office, House and Senate fiscal agencies and appropriations committees provided too little information when it came time to approve the state's 1975-76 budget.

RELIGIOUS FIGURES AT UN

'Need Spiritual Vision'

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Amid the world's rough political weather, noted religious figures are converging here from around the globe to try to inject some unifying spiritual vision into international affairs.

The United Nations, strained by various conflicts and pressures, is welcoming the added input.
"Political leaders feel a kind of bankruptcy and despair and have become aware of the need for spiritual unity," says Pir Vilayat Inayat Khan, head of the Sufi order in the Western world. "That's why they're opening their doors to us."

Scholars and specialists of the major world faiths, Islam, Buddhism, Hinduism, Christianity and Judaism, are taking part in the affair Oct. 18-24 with U.N. Secretary-General

Kurt Waldheim and diplomats joining in portions of it.
It is described as the first international religious meeting at the U.N. in its 30-year history, although Pope Paul VI addressed the U.N. in 1965.
"There is increasing recognition in secular and political life that we're floundering and drying up, that it's not sufficient to be grounded in merely humanistic documents," says Dr. Joan Houston, conference chairman.

Dr. Houston, president of the Foundation for Mind Research, Pomona, N.Y., adds, "We've gotten lost in ideologies, in particular groups and nationalisms, and now, in the crises of world affairs, there's a new realization that we're not going to solve problems from the outside."
"We need to renew our roots in the deeper spiritual realities, in the image of oneness of humanity, and do it from within. We need to draw on the fundamental resources of the human race, on the taproots of existence."

The gathering, called "Summit V," the fifth inter-religious meetings sponsored in various parts of the world by the Temple of Understanding, an interfaith educational foundation, has the theme "One in the Human Spirit."
Waldheim and various religious notables are among scheduled speakers, including: Mother Teresa, Roman Catholic founder of the Missionaries of Charity in India; Lord Abbott Kosho Ohtani of Japan, a leading Buddhist scholar; Seyyed Hossein Nasr of Iran, a prominent Islamic scholar; Srimati Gayatri Devi of Bombay, India, internationally known Hindu philosopher; Rabbi Dr. Robert Gordis of New York, a top Jewish philosopher; and anthropologist Margaret Mead, an influential Episcopalian.

Only the last of six days of seminars, panel discussions, lecture sessions and ritual demonstrations will be at the U.N. Other features, at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, include two celebrations of a "cosmic mass," expressing in story, dance and music the kinship of human faiths.
"What we try to do is to bring out the beauty, the validity and basic unity of all historic religions and the potentiality for doing good," says Saphira Barbara Lindin of Boston, director of the unusual mass.

"The world has been through a period of struggle, leaving it with a sense of paralysis and inadequacy, but now there's an awakening of conscience, a possibility that we can see again the kernels for building life."
"It's time to build a new kind of vibration."
Pir Inayat Khan, the bearded, bearded Sufi leader who resides at centers in Paris and New Lebanon, N.Y., is narrator and author of the mass, which uses a volunteer cast of 300 to depict the background and shared ideals of the varied faiths.

"They're complementary rather than contradictory," he says. "What we're really describing is the mass in heaven, now reflected in the religions on earth."
He says the U.N. is "beginning to see the importance of coming together religiously to solve its problems. In recent times, it has lost sight of its original inspiration of one humanity, but there now seems to be a renewed awareness that we need a spiritual backbone."

THE BIBLE

No. 209. Job's Friends Try To Comfort Him

It did not take long for news of Job's great tragedies to reach his friends. Three of his friends, upon learning of these disasters, left their homes and families to be with Job so that they might comfort and console him. These men were Eliphaz the Temanite, Bildad the Shuhite, and Zophar the Naamathite. As they came upon Job, they were shocked, for Job had changed so much in his sorrow that his three friends could scarcely recognize him. To demonstrate their sorrow, they rent their robes, wailed loudly in despair, and threw dust into the air and put earth on their heads.

"So they sat down with him upon the ground seven days and seven nights, and none spake a word unto him: for they saw that his grief was very great." (Job 2:13)

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Bag OK If You're Sober

Dear Ann Landers: How COULD you, even in the name of humor, print the suggestion that a cook put a plastic bag over his head while peeling onions in order to avoid the fumes? Some unthinking reader is sure to try this suggestion and suffocate! I urge you to warn your readers against the use of plastic bags in such a manner, and especially to keep those things out of the reach of children! — Deeply Disappointed

Dear Dis: I was dumbfounded at the number of letters (and phone calls!) I received from readers who were upset by the suggestion that the onion peeler put a plastic bag over his head to avoid tearful eyes and a running nose.

There is no way an adult can suffocate if he is in his right mind and sober.

As for keeping plastic bags out of the reach of children — now THAT makes some sense.

Pushy Brother

Dear Ann Landers: What can be done to protect yourself against a vicious relative? My husband's older brother has tried to dominate our lives as well as the lives of his other brothers and their families from the moment we married into the family.

There were five boys and each of the wives has had to fight to save her marriage from this eldest brother's venomous attacks. He writes letters to his younger brothers at work and tells them what their wives have been doing that he thinks is wrong. He then suggests "proper punishment."

It doesn't stop there. He writes lengthy reports on what he hears about their children and doesn't hesitate to outline what should be done about their "terrible behavior." In the meantime his own kids have been in trouble with the police and his frightened mouse of a wife is a candidate for a mental hospital.

Please come out swinging. We need your help. — Beat Down

Dear B.D.: No man or beast could become that powerful unless someone gave him the authority. The Gestapo routine should have been scotched the minute Big Brother began to stick his nose into your business.

It's up to you women to let your husbands know you will no longer tolerate the bully's interference. If you haven't the guts to do it you'll just have to suffer.

Forget Incident

Dear Ann Landers: Yesterday I wore a plum-colored outfit to the office. A woman I work with complimented me on the ensemble and said she has a suede bag exactly the same color which she had worn only a few times. "I'd love for you to have it," she said. "I'll bring it tomorrow."

Today she brought the bag and it was a perfect match. When I thanked her she said, "I didn't mean it as a gift. I had in mind selling it to you at cost. The price is $40."

I almost fell through the floor. I told her I couldn't afford it and thanked her anyway.

In all my life I have never sold an article of used clothing to a friend. Now I feel our relationship has been hurt. Am I naive? Am I stupid? Was she crass? I need your opinion. — Plum-Faced

Dear P.F.: Selling used clothing to friends, generally speaking, is not a good idea. The woman should have made it clear from the outset that she intended to sell you the bag. Forget the incident and hopefully she will, too.

A no-nonsense approach to how to deal with life's most difficult and most rewarding arrangement. Ann Landers' booklet, "Marriage — What to Expect," will prepare you for better or for worse. Send your request to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120, enclosing 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dr. Lester Coleman

Softening of bone due to the absorption of calcium is a frequent occurrence, especially in women who are passing through the menopause (change of life).

This is thought to be due to an inadequate amount of a female sex hormone.

The condition, known as osteoporosis, can produce a variety of symptoms. For a long time, estrogen has been used, both as a preventative and for treatment.

Now, a group of interesting cases has been reported that have been markedly benefited by the use of calcium and fluoride supplements, in addition to vitamin D.

Dr. Jennifer Jowsey, of the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn., has noted return of the calcification of the bone in patients on this regime.

Another report on the value of an enzyme injection for lumbar disc disease has just been released.

Dr. Henry W. Abfelfach, of Lake Forest, Ill., studied 37 patients, 29 of whom were distinctly improved after the enzyme treatment.

The process, known as chemo-nucleolysis, is being tried all over America in carefully selected patients.

The early recognition of deafness during infancy is the key to the hope of preventing its progress and even of producing a cure.

A great deal of time has often been wasted in establishing existing deafness.

Dr. Robert Ruben, Professor of Diseases of the Ear, Nose and Throat at the Albert Einstein College of Medicine in New York City, has developed an extensive program, aimed at the early detection of deafness.

With highly sophisticated electronic equipment, even the very young can be studied to establish a program of rehabilitation.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH — The Police Department and Fire Department in most communities in America play important lifesaving roles. They are a vital part of America's health team.

DR. LESTER COLEMAN has prepared a special booklet entitled "Alcoholism — A Family Disease." It probes this grave problem and offers hopeful advice. For your copy, send 25 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lester L. Coleman, M.D., (Alcoholism booklet), P.O. Box 5178, Grand Central Station, New York City 10017. Please mention the booklet by title.

Library Lists Film

"Vanishing Cornwall," based on Daphne du Maurier's book, will be the film shown Tuesday, Oct. 21, at 7:30 p.m. for Family Film Night at Maud Preston Palenske Memorial library, St. Joseph.

The film, narrated by Sir Michael Redgrave, is taken directly from the text of the book. Cornwall county in England, where Miss du Maurier has lived for over 40 years, is the setting for some of her famous novels, including "Rebecca," "Jamaica Inn," "Frenchman's Creek," "The King's General," and "My Cousin Rachel." The film shares the author's knowledge of the county's past and all that has given it its rich history and flavor.

A story hour for preschool through second grade children will be held Saturday, Oct. 18, at 11 a.m. and will feature witches, goblins and elves.

Dorothy Kuny has a collection of Wedgwood china and other china pieces in the display case for the month of October.

New books at the library are "Lady Pamela" by Clare Darcy; "Bring on the Empty Horses" by David Niven; and "Liberal Parents, Radical Children" by Midge Decker.

By Oswald & James Jacoby
 Frank Thomas goes through a long rigamarole in order to describe how Holmes and Watson bid to six spades.

The bidding in the box shows how they might have reached it if they were using the jump raise as almost, but not quite, forcing.

 Holmes counted 12 easy tricks provided clubs broke 3-3. He decided to use a dummy reversal to give him twelve against a 4-2 club break.

At trick two he ruffed a heart. Then he cashed his ace of spades, led a spade to dummy's jack, ruffed another heart, entered dummy with a high club, ruffed dummy's last heart with his last trump, entered dummy with the other club honor, drew East's last trump with dummy's queen while discarding his six of diamonds and would have made seven if clubs had broken evenly.

This play would have failed if East had started with one less heart and one more diamond since he would have been able to discard a club on the lead of the last heart.

If you want to have some fun you can find two other ways to make the contract. Neither suffers from the disadvantages mentioned before but each has certain weaknesses so that we have no quarrel with Holmes' play.

We would lead a club. Either the deuce or five. We want to select the lead that is least likely to cost us a trick and all other suits appear to be more dangerous.

FOR SUNDAY OCT. 19, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Your judgment is excellent today on things that affect you alone. If you try to extend your thinking to cover others, you'll get into a heap of trouble.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 You tend to count on a little more than you have coming today. You'll be disappointed when you don't get all you hoped for.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Don't wear out your welcome if invited to a social gathering today. If you're one of the first to arrive, be sure to be one of the first to leave.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 Someone you're going to rely on today won't be there when you need him. Count on the only one you can — yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 A person you'll have a discussion with today feels as strongly about the subject as you do, only you'll be on opposite sides of the fence.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 Pressure will be brought to bear on you by a person who was reluctant to take "no" for an answer yesterday. Give him the same reply.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 Although you will solicit advice from others today, their answers won't really register. You'll do things as you first intended.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 Pay particular attention to health matters today. Don't over-exert yourself. Curl up with a good book or the TV.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 You may have trouble handling the children today, but not nearly as much as you'll have if you let some busybody really gum up the works.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 You and your mate better decide early who's going to be in charge today. Your wigwag isn't large enough for two chiefs and no Indians.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 Keep your ideas in perspective today. Though you may think in grandiose terms, you're missing a lot of small, necessary details.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 Be more protective than usual of your possessions today, for you may find someone taking a liking to something you're particularly fond of yourself.

For Monday, Oct. 20, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
 Some unexpected expenses could suddenly pop up today and catch you off-guard if you're not careful. Manage your money prudently.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
 Be smart today about handling people whose cooperation you need. Get off on the wrong foot and their help will be withdrawn.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
 Usually you don't mind lending a helping hand when you can. Today, you'll see that your interests come first.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
 You could be pressured by a friend over something material. Try not to make loans or borrow from pals if you can prevent it.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
 Don't put too high a price on gratifying your ambitions today. The rewards won't be worth the toes you'll have to step on.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
 You've not completely forgiven someone you may cross swords with again today. It won't pay to relish a volatile old issue.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
 Even though you'll be inconvenienced, try to honor an old obligation to a friend. Problems will arise if you renege.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
 Partnership situations will get a bit sticky for you today if your goals are not in harmony. Don't be the one to drag his feet.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
 You tend to make chores that face you today far more complicated than they are. Mistakes and frustrations are likely.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
 Don't gamble on the unknown today or take chances where the success of the venture is in someone else's hands.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
 You may have to contend with a few more domestic frustrations today than usual. If you keep your cool, they're manageable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
 Be careful today or you might get yourself embroiled in a heated discussion with a friend over a ridiculous issue.

American Among New Nobel Winners

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Five scientists, including an American, won the 1975 Nobel Prizes for Chemistry and Physics on Friday for pioneer discoveries in their fields. The Swedish Academy of Science said the chemistry award is shared by John Warcup Cornforth, 58, a research professor at Sussex University in Brighton, England, and Yugoslavian-born Vladimir Prelog, 69, of Zurich. The physics award went to James Rainwater, 57, of Columbia University, and two Danes — Aage Bohr, 53, whose father Niels Bohr also won a physics Nobel prize for his nuclear research, and the younger Bohr's collaborator, Benjamin Mottelson, 49. The chemistry awards were given for advances in understanding the three-dimensional arrangement of atoms in molecules and the functional results of the arrangement. In physics, the awards also concerned atoms, this time regarding movement of tiny particles within the atomic nucleus and how that movement affects the structure of the nucleus.

Cornforth said he was "working at the bench" at Sussex University in Brighton when the "total surprise" announcement came. "I am very happy, and very happy to be sharing the prize with Professor Prelog," he said. He took the afternoon off to be "entertained by colleagues." Prelog, reached in Zurich at the Swiss Federal Institute of Technology, said he was "so overwhelmed I simply cannot find the right words to express my feelings."

Ypsilanti-Ann Arbor Drug Raids Net 30; 19 Sought

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — The arrest count in a series of bullet-punctuated drug raids in the Ypsilanti-Ann Arbor area rose to 30 Friday. Police said they still are looking for 19 others after swooping down on alleged heroin and cocaine dealers.

Ann Arbor police said they fired several shots when they spotted two of the suspects in a car on a street in the city's downtown.

The pair sped off in the car, abandoned it a few blocks away and fled on foot, police said.

Washtenaw County Prosecutor William Delhey said late Friday the raids were continuing. He said warrants charge the 49 persons on 73 counts of trafficking in heroin and two counts of delivery of cocaine.

Delhey said that as far as he knows, none of those arrested were students at the University of Michigan. Sixteen of the 49 persons were involved in earlier drug raids in the Ann Arbor area, Delhey said.

Ann Arbor Police Chief Walter Krasny said $20,000 was spent by officers of the Washtenaw Area Narcotics Team (WANT) to purchase heroin and cocaine. Krasny said the heroin was about 22 per cent pure.

Ann Arbor police said some guns were seized. The WANT force included Ann Arbor and Ypsilanti city police, Livingston County sheriff's deputies and Michigan State Police.

Nineteen of those arrested had been arraigned in court by late Friday, Delhey reported.

Milliken Opposes Gas Proposal

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — An amendment has been drafted in Congress to protect Michigan from a threatened cutoff of Canadian compounds used for making synthetic natural gas. Gov. William Milliken said Friday.

Big Lottery Prizes Still Unclaimed

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Four top winners in Michigan's Bicentennial Lottery, including the $1 million winner, have not picked up their prizes, state lottery officials report.

The winner of $150,000, a Michigan State University student, hasn't turned in his ticket yet and is talking it over how to use the money with family and other advisors, lottery officials said.

None of the other top three winners has yet redeemed their $5 tickets for the $200,000, $250,000 and $1 million awaiting them, but lottery spokesman David Hanson says he isn't surprised.

"This chunk of money really changes somebody's life. My speculation is that the winners are just checking on what their tax liability is" before they claim their winnings, Hanson said Friday.

Hanson said much of the prize money would be claimed by the Internal Revenue Service, so winners might wait until January to claim their money and avoid the payment this year.

The compounds, called feedstocks, are mixtures of propane. Milliken said the amendment would exempt imported propane mixtures from legislation reducing the amount of propane used to produce synthetic natural gas (SNG).

Michigan has the nation's largest SNG plant, Consumers Power Company's facility at Marysville. It operates on Canadian feedstock and produces 20 per cent of the utility's power.

Milliken said the proposed legislation, which he wants Michigan's two senators to oppose, would stipulate that propane could not be used for SNG production until all needs for propane by residential users, health facilities, agriculture, food processors and packagers are met.

Such a provision, Milliken said "would wreak havoc in Michigan, where the reliability of gas supply to those areas of the state served by Consumers Power Co. is dependent on the continuous operation of the Marysville plant." He said the feedstock used at the plant is about 30 per cent propane.

Milliken said the amendment to protect Michigan from the new provisions apparently is agreeable to all the parties involved, including its sponsors.

U.N. Panel Says Zionism 'Racism'

By GENE KRAMER
Associated Press Writer
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A U.N. full membership committee has declared Zionism a form of racial discrimination, an action which the United States warned "places the work of the United Nations in jeopardy."

By a vote of 70-29, with 27 abstentions the social affairs committee Friday night recommended to the General Assembly an Arab and Communist-backed resolution asserting that the assembly "determines that Zionism is a form of racism and racial discrimination."

Zionism is the movement for a Jewish national homeland in Palestine — a homeland that came into existence with the creation of Israel against Arab opposition.

Israel condemned the resolution, saying in a Foreign Ministry statement released in Jerusalem that it was "against the basic right to nationhood of the Jewish people." The statement said the resolution was a "clear expression of racism," and it condemned the "states who worked and voted for it."

Friday's U.N. action was the first major clash of the autumn assembly session between supporters of the Arab nations and of Israel.

The Palestine Liberation Organization has claimed credit for the resolution, which was cosponsored by the 20 Arab U.N. members, Cuba, the Ukraine, Dahomey, Guinea and Afghanistan.

Diplomats said the Arabs regarded the measure as compensation for giving up at least temporarily on an earlier campaign to oust Israel from the assembly.

U.S. delegates Leonard Garment told the committee before it voted that "Under the guise of a program to eliminate racism the United Nations is at the point of officially endorsing anti-Semitism, one of the oldest and most virulent forms of racism known to human history... this is an obscene act."

Trappers Also Skinned In Legal Alligator Hunt

CREOLE, La. (AP) — It looks like the trappers also will wind up getting skinned in the nation's only legal alligator hunt.

The hunt was a success, allaying fears that that a brief early cold snap had put a crimp in it. But hide traders are expected to pay trappers a lot less than they have before because the United States has signed an 11-nation treaty banning international trade in skins stripped from creatures on the endangered species list.

"Because alligators are on that list, their skins can't be exported overseas where the best markets are, even though a change in federal regulations made the hunt legal."

"Isn't that ridiculous?" fumed one large hide dealer, who asked that he not be named. "They told me, 'There's no way we can give you a permit to export those skins.' So I'm not bidding."

He predicted that sealed bids at the sale, tentatively scheduled for Wednesday, will range from $6 to $8 per linear foot — way off the $14.50 average posted after the last hunt in these same swamps.

The 2,900 hides taken in that hunt brought a total of $271,000, and most of them went to firms in Europe, with the best skins made into $50 men's belts or $350 women's handbags.

On the domestic market, complications include a New York State law against products made of alligator hide.

These looming coastal marshes had warmed up before the hunt, so the alligators didn't go into hibernation, and about 4,000 of them got it right between their beady eyes.

"It looks like most hunters have filled out their quota," said Ted Joanen, biologist for the state Wildlife and Fisheries Commission.

Kissinger: Nations' Interests Are First

ELMENDORF AIR FORCE BASE, Alaska (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, en route to Peking, said U.S. relations with the People's Republic of China depend more on the interests of both countries than on the people in power.

Kissinger's comments came Friday at a brief news conference during a one-hour refueling stop in Anchorage.

In response to a question concerning the illnesses of Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai, Kissinger said, "We are all mortal, but the relations between the People's Republic of China and the United States don't depend on personalities — they depend on the basic interests of both countries."

"We would think that the main lines of the policies of both countries would continue regardless of who was in office in either country."

Kissinger added that he believed Prime Minister Chou "is a man of outstanding abilities."

Kissinger said he assumed that because of Chou's and Mao's illnesses, he will meet with Vice Premier Teng Hsiao Ping, who seems to be in day-to-day control of China, and that he will continue the policy of better relations with the United States.

Insomnia Turns Astronaut Into Author

By CHRISTINE A. HINZ
MIDLAND, Mich. (AP) — Alfred M. Worden is a scientist who flew to the moon, but also an author-poet who came back again and wrote of man's most challenging frontier.

Circling in Apollo 15's spaceship, Endeavor, 140,000 miles up, gave Worden a vantage point shared by few men.

"The experience 'heightened' any feelings the astronaut had about earth, the universe, the moon or space.

His book, "Hello Earth: Greetings from Endeavor," is a first attempt at publishing. It is a sensitive collection of perspectives and reflections gained floating "nowhere...between the earth and moon."

Explaining the book, Worden said: "It was a combination of a lot of things...of all the questions asked by the press after the flight. It was putting emotions into something concise."

Worden is in Midland attending Northwood Institute's automotive marketing business management course. His writings show another side of a scientist who has both astronautical and aeronautical engineering degrees.

Four years ago, Worden put his life on a new course, leaving the Houston program and taking a job at NASA Ames Research Center in California.

After resigning the post there and buying a mobile home, he and wife Sandy and her daughter, Stephanie, have moved to Midland temporarily. Today he is readying himself for a career in the auto industry.

The time following flight, Worden said, presents tremendous social and public relations pressures.

"I found I was only sleeping two and three hours a night," he recalled. "I was so charged up from debriefing and press meetings, I would get home in the evening, sit around with friends who wanted to talk and have a couple of drinks."

It was midnight before they would leave, and hours before he could get to sleep.

"At 2 or 3 in the morning, I would be sitting around the apartment, by myself, with all the lights out except one. I thought, 'This is the best time of the day. Nobody is around.' I would pick up a pencil and start writing. I NEVER THOUGHT ABOUT IT, IT JUST CAME."

Ideas for the 17 selections in the book, he explained, were generated in flight and captured after the 1971 space venture.

"I was back on earth when I felt the full impact of the flight, and this seemed like a natural outlet," Worden said.

Worden's wife, Sandra, has her own story to tell.

Few people would guess, looking at her svelte figure, her carefully applied makeup and the lightened wisps of hair framing her face, that once she was a bullfighter.

An American girl of French descent from Florida, Sandra went to live on her godfather's ranch in Mexico, where by the age of 16 she was into bullfighting on a professional basis.

For the next eight years, under the pseudonym of Dixie Lee, she was one of three American women fighting in the bullrings of Mexico.

That was in the late 50's and early 60's. Today, Sandra Worden is raising a 6-year-old daughter, Stephanie, and taking classes with her husband at Northwood Institute.

She quit bullfighting in 1963, "when the last bull almost annihilated me. My split timing was gone."

In the ensuing years, she became a model for Emilio Pucci and Ester Lauder in Paris and married twice.

Mrs. Worden said bullfighting — despite its bloody and barbaric image — is a "primitive art form that is fast dying."

"It takes strength, agility, artistic knowledge and training," she explained. "You have to learn how to run — forwards, backwards and sideways."

Mrs. Worden said she fought in bullrings ranging in capacity from 600 seats to 60,000, from Mexico to South America to Mozambique and Angola.

"The hardest thing to overcome was the male prejudice in the Latin American countries," she said. It was the 'machismo' thing. In Mexico, bullfighting is the epitome of virility for men.

"A woman comes along and shatters the illusion — and sometimes also is a better fighter."

During her eight year career in the ring, Mrs. Worden suffered concussions and broken legs. She was tossed, flipped, turned upside-down, battered by hooves and knocked cold, coming up spitting teeth.

But she was never gored.

Why do it?

"I did it because I loved the art," she answered. "You are really down to basics. It is life and death and teasing with it."

'Miss America Syndrome' Costly To Proud Parents

By BETTY HANSEN
SAGINAW, Mich. (AP) — Call it the "Miss America Syndrome."

It cost the parents of 13-year-old Susie Smith $1,300 to fly her to the Little Miss Perfection Contest, held at a plush motel in Dallas, Tex.

The cost, gladly paid by her middle-income father, included plane fare for Susie and her mother, an expensive wardrobe, her costumes and a $200 charge to have a picture printed in a program book which sold at the pageant for $5.

Susie didn't win anything at the pageant, but this doesn't bother her parents. They've been entering her in pageants of this sort since she's been 5, and a couple of times she's made "state finals" and even was a state winner once.

All of this is extremely costly to the Smiths. Mrs. Smith works at a clerical job so that Susie can have the advantages both parents think she needs if she is to one day walk out on that ramp as a contestant in the ultimate of pageants, "Miss America."

Susie is an average pretty 13-year-old with a heavier than average work load for a youngster her age. When she is not in school she is busy taking dancing and baton twirling lessons and being driven across the state weekly by her mother to attend a modeling school.

"And when she's not doing all of these things, she rehearses her talent," her mother said proudly. "When you get to these state level pageants the competition is terrific."

Susie Smith is one of the thousands of children between the ages of 3 and 16, almost all female, who are entered by their parents in one of 1,000 "talent and beauty" pageants each year for their youngsters with the crown of Miss America at the summit. Many of them feel the expense incurred is worth every penny.

Pageants in recent years have included "Little Miss Nationwide Talent," "Miss Sweetheart" and the Talent International Pageant.

Interviews with parents who have entered their children in these contests turned up a variety of reactions, ranging from a definite feeling that somewhere along the way they had been "taken" to others who definitely felt their youngsters had benefitted from the experience.

Mrs. Rodney Lorenzo, Milwaukee, entered her daughter in the "Little Miss Michigan Talent Contest," sponsored by Little Miss Nationwide Talent Contest based in Rockton, Ill.

She was unhappy about having to pay a $100 entry fee. The Lorenzos said the state competition didn't live up to either the pre-contest literature or their own expectations.

"There was no competition," she said. In the talent show all you got to see was your own daughter. We went into a regular hotel room with these three people who run the contest. They were the judges.

"He turned on his tape recorder. Shelley went through her act, and that was it. We were told there'd be a rehearsal for the pageant, but there was none."

At this particular pageant, two mothers complained that the trophies, lined up on the ballroom stage, were removed and parents were told their children would receive them later.

"The announcing was sloppy," recalled Mrs. Lorenzo. "In fact, part of the time the announcer forgot to mention what some of the girls' talents were. Also we were told our expenses would be paid, and they weren't."

Today In History

By Associated Press

Today is Saturday, Oct. 18, the 291st day of 1975. There are 74 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1867, the United States took formal possession of Alaska from Russia.

On this date: In 1540, the Spanish explorer, Hernando de Soto, was fighting Indians in southern Alabama.

In 1767, the boundary line between Maryland and Pennsylvania — the Mason-Dixon line — was agreed upon.

In 1892, the first commercial long-distance telephone service began, between New York and Chicago.

In 1898, the American flag was raised over Puerto Rico shortly before the island was ceded to the United States by Spain.

In 1944, in World War II, Soviet troops invaded Czechoslovakia.

In 1971, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin was attacked by a demonstrator on the Canadian parliament grounds in Ottawa but was unhurt.

Ten years ago: Agents of the FBI arrested a pacifist in Manchester, N.H. on charges of destroying his draft card. It was the first such arrest under a new law.

Five years ago: The Canadian parliament met in special session to discuss the terrorist slaying of a Quebec official, Pierre Laporte.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the Massachusetts House of Representatives in Watertown voted to establish a number of armed vessels along the East Coast to seize British ships and take the cargoes as prizes for the crewmen.

Village With Character

CARMEL, Calif. (AP)— The visitor usually looks on Carmel as an artists' colony with quaint shops and homes. But not the resident. He clings to the "village" character of his home. In fact, the official name of the village is "Carmel by the Sea."

Most residents and business establishments don't have addresses. They result is that most old timers go to the post office every day for their mail.

COLD OKAY

Cabbage, cauliflower and Brussels sprouts will stand frost in the field. Brief temperatures down to 25 degrees will not injure them immediately; however, repeated freezing will cause deterioration in time.

Cabbage and Brussels sprouts are the most hardy. In fact, Brussels sprouts are harvested all winter in Great Britain.

Winter squash will stand a light frost also, but not continued freezing. Acorn, butter-nut, butternut and delicata are in this category. Store squash and pumpkins with the stems on. Spinach will overwinter well if there is snow cover or mulch.

ROOT CROPS

Carrots, beets, turnips, rutabagas and salsify may remain in the soil until just before the ground freezes. Plan on grinding horseradish in the next two or three weeks.

TOMATOES

Green-ripe tomatoes, free of cracks and bruises, may be picked just before frost. If placed on shelves where the temperature is 50-60 degrees, they will ripen over a six-week period. Entire plants may be pulled and hung from joists in the basement or storeroom.

Architect Finds New Career As Colonial Designer

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Architect Evan Pollitt got into the Bicentennial spirit as long ago as 1948.

That's when he designed and built his own house in Easton, Conn., to the exact exterior dimensions of an old Cape Anne house he and his wife had seen in Gloucester, Mass.

The original, built in 1730, had a gambrel roof, was 28 feet by 24 feet and was a typical design of its era. The gambrel roof, with its two slopes, the lower steeper than the upper, had the advantage of providing more headroom on the second floor.

It was during the construction of his new house that Pollitt got the idea of devoting all his working time to the business of designing Colonial houses authentic in every exterior detail. But he was so busy starting his own private practice, something he had wanted to do since leaving the U.S. Navy three years earlier, that he never got around to it.

Finally, 25 years later, when a successful career permitted him the luxury of pursuing his dream, he began to visit and measure old houses.

The owners of these houses — some individuals, some historical organizations — were only too willing to cooperate.

In all, Pollitt has measured more than 100 Colonial houses. Although he started "cold" in nearly all cases, not one person or group refused to permit him to take whatever steps were necessary to produce duplicate plans of their houses.

These steps included accurate

Building News

measurements of the entire exterior, the sizes and locations of windows and dormers, the sizes and contours of cornices, the pitches of roofs, etc.

This was not too difficult with some of the houses, but very involved in those where additions had been made over the years and it had to be determined which were parts of the original structures and which were not.

Constant inspections confirmed what Pollitt had discovered in 1948 when choosing a FARMHOUSE: This building was farmhouse of the Freeman family in Massachusetts. Judged as a fine example of the gambrel-roof Early American style, it was moved to Sturbridge Village, where it can be viewed by the public.

design to use for his own house. The exteriors were charming, but most interiors were not suitable for good living by modern standards.

The sizes of the rooms, except for the kitchens, were often too small. More important, the traffic layouts generally were poor, with absence of hallways in most cases, so that passage had to be made through one, two and three rooms in order to reach one's destination.

Hence, in the plans Pollitt has drawn up with Colonial exteriors that follow actual structures, he has put up-to-date, easy-circulation patterns on the inside.

During the course of his investigations, Pollitt found that very few houses built during the Colonial period suffered severe deterioration.

Those no longer in existence were lost by fire or wrecked to make room for other buildings.

The architect said that most of the types of wood in the Colonials are still readily available, with only a minimum amount of millwork necessary to duplicate them.

Small Lot A Headache

BEVERLY, Calif. (AP)— George Gazulis's problems here began when he applied for permit to build home on a small, very steep lot.

Before the city council got through checking ordinances, Gazulis had to narrow his home to 20 feet in width to comply with a setback of 10 feet in the rear yard.

Then came the problem of how to wash two large picture windows on a two-and-a-half-story house when he has no place to stand. He asked to build a 30-inch catwalk across the window wall of the house on each story so window washers would have a place to stand.

You wouldn't build a house with half a roof, but that might be what you're living in!

That's right, half of your overhead protection might be missing. Insulation protects you from extremes in outside temperature and expensive heat loss in the colder months. It pays for itself, yet many houses have little or no overhead insulation. Bringing your ceiling insulation up to 6" can save you up to 17% on your gas heating bill.

And insulating your ceiling is easy! We have a free booklet available that'll help you do it yourself. Or, we'll arrange for installation of ceiling insulation, and you can pay for it monthly, as part of your gas heating bill.

John said that William Zehm, 45, 612 Riverside, Berrien Springs, a university farm employee, told police he spotted a small fire in one of the two wagons while parking it in the storage building about 9:30 a.m. yesterday. Zehm told police he was able to put the fire out without calling for help, and stood by about a half-hour without noticing any further fire. Zehm told police he checked the building again at about 11 a.m. and again was not able to detect any fire. John said sawdust from College Wood Products, a furniture manufacturing operation owned by the university, is stored in the storage building. It is later transferred to the university's nearby farm for use there, John said. Smith said that the fire twisted several of the steel beams supporting the roof of the heating plant. Eau Claire firemen were called to stand by because Smith said firemen at first feared the blaze might spread to a nearby building that contained several hundred gallons of flammable chemical used by the furniture operation. Smith said all firemen had cleared from the scene by 6 p.m. There were no injuries, Smith said.

Both thieves were carrying guns. The two bandits took about $170 in cash and $550 in jewelry from Faris and Rodgers. The hands of the two TV repairmen were tied and they were forced to lie on the floor before the thugs fled. The telephone cords were also cut. Faris untied himself a short time after the men fled and he drove to the police station. Neither Faris or Rodgers was seriously injured and no shots were fired.

Valium Is Now No. 1 Abused Drug

CHICAGO (AP) — Valium, the drug most often prescribed by doctors to treat anxiety, has become the No. 1 choice of drug abusers, according to a study released by the National Council on Drug Abuse.

Dr. Jordan Scher, executive director of the council, said the statistics in the study released Friday "mean that an excellent drug for medical purposes is being overused medically and is certainly being abused by drug abusers."

Research shows Valium currently is contributing to four times as many drug-related deaths in the Chicago area as it did last year, he said.

In addition, the study cites national figures indicating the use of Valium in drug overdose cases not necessarily resulting in death has doubled since 1973.

NYC's Salvation Only Temporary

By DAVID SHAFFER
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — New York City has won another last-minute reprieve from financial default. But officials say the city is still in grave trouble and that only federal help can ultimately save it from collapse.

The city was rescued from its narrowest brush yet with fiscal disaster Friday afternoon when the teachers' union relented and agreed to use its pension funds to help refinance $453 million in debt obligations which came due at 3 p.m.

A complex financial plan to meet some $1 billion in obligations through November is still not firmly tied down, however. And in December and January the city faces a whopping total of $2.16 billion in cash shortages with no source of the money in sight.

To consider possible ways the federal government could help with the post-November problem, the Senate Banking Committee resumes hearings today in Washington, with New Orleans Mayor Moon Landrieu as the leadoff witness. Mayor Abraham D. Beame also is to testify today.

Landrieu, president of the U.S. Conference of Mayors, criticized President Ford on Friday for the administration's continuing opposition to providing federal aid to the city.

"I find it awfully strange that there is strong administration support for economic aid to foreign countries, both friends and enemies, and that there has been administration support for Penn Central and other financial giants' pleading bankruptcy," he said.

Through the crisis, Ford and his spokesmen have emphasized the need for fiscal austerity by the city.

Gov. Hugh Carey, who has put together one deal after another in the past six months to avert the city's financial collapse, emerged from around-the-clock negotiations Friday to announce, "We are not in default."

That ended a day of concern in which the city's plight had provided at least a first taste of the international economic repercussions which some analysts had warned would follow default.

Bond trading on Wall Street had all but halted, and stock prices were sharply declining in slow trading. In Europe, currency trading came close to a standstill, and world gold prices rose in a pattern which suggested that the value of the U.S. dollar could be hurt if default were allowed to occur.

Carey sent a telegram to Ford declaring that New York was "exhausting its resources" to avert default through November and that after that "the welfare of our citizens rests in the hands of our federal government."

"We need not a handout, but the recognition by the federal government that we are a part of this country," Carey said, repeating his call for federal guarantees of the city's borrowings to allow it to raise money in private financial markets.

But in Washington, there was no indication that Ford's opposition to such help was softening.

State and city officials are pinning their hopes on Congress, believing that the Republican President might sign aid legislation despite his protestations in the Capitol takes on the political burden of acting first.

The most optimistic of Carey's advisers profess hope that Ford will eventually acquiesce, saying the President is publicly maintaining an adamant stance only to insure that the state proceeds firmly in massive budget cuts it is now imposing on the city.

Those cuts, conducted under the aegis of the state-dominated Emergency Financial Control Board, began earlier this week, when Beame presented plans for trimming $200 million from this year's budget — an approach that could mean firing another 8,000 of 283,000 city employees in addition to 21,000 already dropped this year.

store, and it is in Detroit proper, some distance from the suburban restaurant where Hoffa was last seen July 30. No one was at the store when word of the discovery was received in Detroit.

Digging at the dump west of here where the remains were found has stopped but could resume in the near future, said Coen.

An employee of the Arizona-Sonoran Desert Museum near the dump discovered the pieces as he dumped garbage Wednesday. But by the time authorities arrived, a bulldozer operator had unknowingly covered them. Detectives found the hands and left foot in two days of digging.

The county medical examiner, Dr. Louis Hirsch, determined the extremities were from a white male in his 40s or 50s.

The skin of the fingertips and palms and the bottom of the foot had been cut away, according to Hirsch. He said the sole was cut to the "tendons or bone" with what appeared to be a saw or sharp knife.

No one was injured in either fire and no damage estimate is available at this time, fire officials said. The fires remain under investigation.

Bears' Quick Blows Stun Portage Northern

Previously Unbeaten Huskies Decked, 20-7

By JERRY DYKSTRA
Staff Sports Writer

Zap! Zap! Zap!
St. Joseph landed three quick early blows to stun Portage Northern and then held on until the final "bell" to deck the previously undefeated Huskies 20-7 Friday night at Dickinson Stadium.

The underdog Bears, whose top offensive output in five previous games was 15 points against Niles last week, softened up Northern with their 20-point punch in the opening quarter and then let their always dependable defense prevent the Huskies from climbing back off the floor.

St. Joseph was the perfect opportunist as Ike Muhlenkamp's forces came up with three fumble recoveries and two interceptions with two of the fumble recoveries leading to two of three St. Joe touchdowns in the opening explosion.

"We just took advantage of the breaks but our defense and our kickoff team caused the breaks," voiced Muhlenkamp. "Our offense did a real nice job and our defense was superb again. We played vicious defense against Niles and we played vicious defense again tonight. The kids really hit hard...I'm really pleased."

The rapidly-improving Bears put a damper on Northern's Big Seven football championship hopes with the upset win. The Huskies, who could have clinched a piece of the title with a victory, are now 4-1 in league play with one game left. The Bears, who still have a chance of tying for the championship, are 2-2 with two Big Seven contests left.

St. Joe won the coin toss for the opening kickoff but instead of electing to receive the football decided to kick off to the Huskies. That decision proved fateful.

Northern fumbled on its first play from scrimmage with the Bears' Rick Dyer recovering at the Northern 32. The hosts hit paydirt in eight plays with quarterback Dave Ziebart sneaking in from one-yard out. Frank Bock added his first of two PAT kicks.

Scott Wolff then put the Bears up 13-0 with 1:45 left on a sensational 44-yard burst over right tackle. The senior fullback skipped past the final Northern defender at the 25. The march covered 60 yards in five plays.

On the ensuing kickoff, Jim Birkett hit the Huskies' Mitch Hite with a bone-jarring tackle with Dale Rupley landing on the loose ball at the Northern eight. On the second play, Dave Tibbitts took a pitch and circled to the right for the score from six yards away. That put the Bears up 20-0 with 40 seconds still left in the first quarter.

The Bears dominated the first quarter, gaining 100 yards to 27 for the Huskies. But Northern controlled the football and the statistics the last three quarters, holding an 189-56 net yards advantage and 9-2 edge in first downs to finish with an overall advantage in the final stats.

Interceptions by Barry Coburn and Brian Lannon and a fumble recovery by Dick Goodman kept the Huskies at bay. However, Northern did dent the scoring column in the third period on a four-yard run by Al Zuidweg. The 77-yard drive was set up on a 48-yard pass from quarterback George Chang to Hite.

Muhlenkamp lauded linebackers Goodman and Dyer for their "super defense again" along with end Mark Laukus for his "great pass rush." The defensive secondary and the offensive play of Wolff and Ziebart also received the coach's praise.

The Bears, who ended with six sacks for 36 yards in losses, got 84 yards in 14 carries from Wolff with 76 coming in the first half. Tibbitts added 37 yards and Jay Claravino 25 as St. Joe gained all its yardage on the ground.

"St. Joe played well, they beat us up front coming off the ball," noted Northern coach Bud Breed, who was missing two regulars due to injury along with quarterback Tom Harvey who was hurt in the first period. "That big first quarter just killed us plus we had bad field position all night."

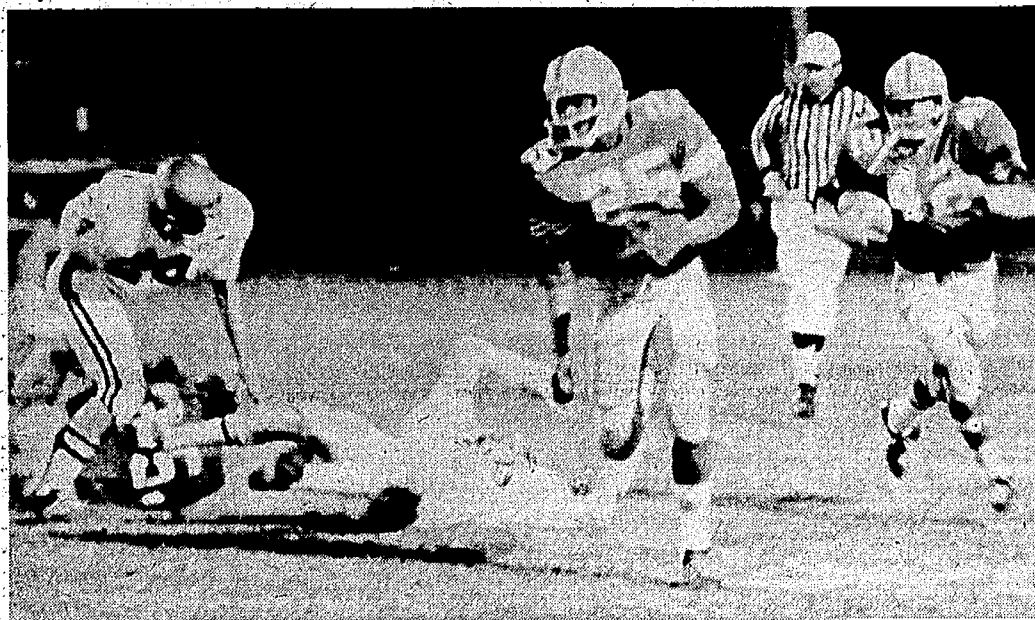

Muhlenkamp reminded his team at the half that "there is NOT going to be a repeat of the Lakeview game." In that game, the Bears led 14-0 at intermission but lost 24-14.

St. Joe is now 3-3 overall while Northern slips to 5-1.

Lakeshore 'Shocks' Coloma In Electrifying Bud Game

By JOHN VANDEN HEEDÉ
Sports Editor

Lakeshore shocked Coloma for a second straight year Friday night at Lancer Stadium in a game of electrifying scoring.

The Blossomland battle matched the top two defenses in southwestern Michigan, but it was more of an offensive show Friday night as four touchdowns of more than 50 yards were ripped off in Lakeshore's 24-19 victory.

The one that zapped Coloma was a 76-yard pass play from Lakeshore quarterback Kevin Campbell to end Tom Jager. It came after the Comets had battled back from an 18-0 deficit to trail by only 18-13 with plenty of time left to pull out the victory.

"That long pass killed us," agreed Coloma coach Bob Irvin. "We really suspected it was coming too... he just outran our kid."

"We wanted to ice the game," added Lakeshore coach Dave Topping on the key fourth quarter TD. "They were playing Jager one-on-one, and there is nobody in southwestern Michigan who can cover Jager one-on-one."

Topping said the pass was a straight fly pattern. Jager had wanted to try it earlier, but Topping decided to wait until the Lancers had the stiff wind at their back in the fourth quarter.

Lakeshore also got a 51-yard touchdown run by Campbell on an option play and a pair of 100-yard games by fullback Mark Krager and tailback Odell Brister while rolling up 412 yards in total offense...its highest total of the season. The other Lancer TDs came on a six-yard run by Campbell - and on an eight-yard run by Brad Gardner.

Coloma tailback John Bertuca, the area's fifth leading rusher going into the game, scored two Comet TDs, one on a 71-yard run, while finishing as the game's leading rusher with 147 yards in 26 carries. Jerry Gagliardo added the other touchdown on an 87-yard punt return.

The setback — Coloma's fifth in a row at the hands of Lakeshore — dropped the defending Blossomland champion Comets into a tie for the league lead with Dowagiac and Brandywine at 4-1. The loss also snapped a four-game Coloma winning streak and left the Comets at 4-2 on the season.

Lakeshore has now won three straight and stands at 3-2 in the Blossomland and 3-3 overall.

Topping thought the way Lakeshore's offensive line dominated Coloma's defense front in the first half was the big difference in the game...besides Jager's TD. "We put them in a deep enough hole and they just ran out of time," explained the Lancer coach.

"We just did not play aggressive football," added Irvin. "The second half we did and we

Lakeshore scored on its first two possessions, with Brister running for 50 yards in the first drive capped by Gardner's TD and Krager gaining 59 yards in the second march topped by Campbell's first six-pointer.

Krager finished with 127 yards in 26 carries and Brister, just a sophomore, added 106 in 15 tries as Lakeshore came up with a pair of 100-yard backs for the first time this season.

It remained at 12-0 until the third quarter, when Lakeshore took the second half kick off and scored on Campbell's long run for an 18-0 lead.

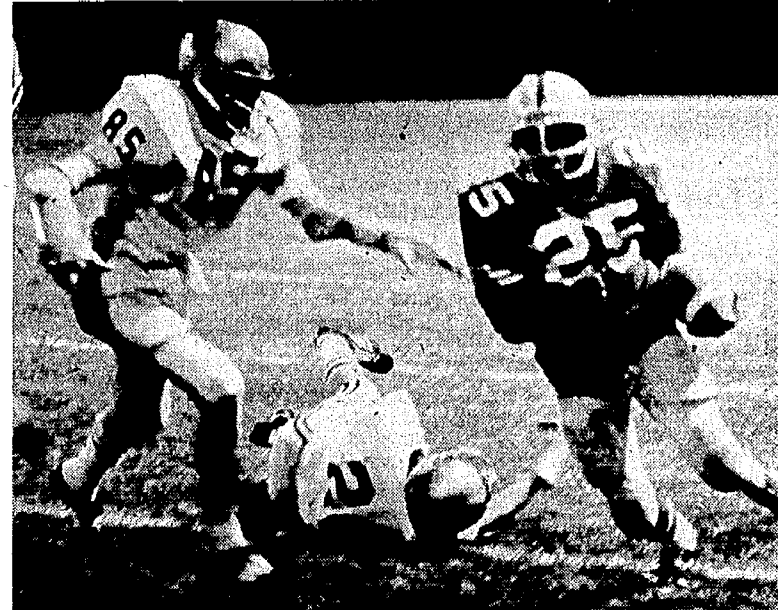

But on the very next play from scrimmage, Bertuca raced 71 yards around right end for his score. All of the rest of the fireworks was in the last period.

Afterwards, Topping gave special credit to the Lakeshore offensive line of tight end Larry Toth, tackles Steve Schuck and Pat Newell, guards Geoff Surch and Jon Bomberger and center Scott Smilke. Lancer defensive standouts were Schuck, Newell, Jager, linebacker Craig Shafer (who suffered a cut under his right eye), rover back Jim Porter and ends Bob Harvey and Mike Miston.

Top Coloma defenders included linebacker Dennis Ory, rover back Rich Shearer, safety John Mattson and end Gregg Woodward.

Checks Harbor Passing Attack

Mona Shores Routs Tigers

BY PAUL MORGAN
Staff Sports Writer

Mike Schulz' reputation as a passing quarterback finally caught up with him Friday night.

The Benton Harbor field general completed just eight of 25 aerials for 60 yards and had four intercepted as the Tigers were smothered by Mona Shores 37-0 in an LMAC football game played at Filstrup Field.

It was just last week that Schulz set a new conference passing mark by throwing for 272 yards against Grand Haven.

"We really didn't think we could stop him that well," grinned Sailors' head coach Jason Loving.

Mona Shores, now 1-2 in league play and 3-3 overall, had studied last week's Benton Harbor game films well as the Sailors set up a pass defense designed to thwart the long bomb. Schulz was forced to go 26 the short passes but his receivers had the dropbacks most of the night. When they did manage to get their hands on one, it was deflected into the hands of a Mona Shores defender.

So the Tigers, now 0-3 in the conference and 0-6 overall, were forced to go to the ground and the Sailors put the lid on that phase of the game, too, giving up just 62 yards.

"We just couldn't get it together," said Tigers' head coach Eugene Jones. "We got a slow start and the defense ended up playing on the field for half the night."

Dave Windatt was a thorn in Benton Harbor's side all night as the Sailor halfback gained 124 yards on 16 carries and scored four touchdowns.

The game was even through the first quarter with the momentum edge possibly going to the Tigers as they stopped Windatt short on a fourth down and two situation on Benton Harbor's 26-yard line early in the game.

Just before the end of the quarter, Harold House had a punt blocked that rolled dead on Benton Harbor's 34-yard line. Eight plays later Bill Jones plunged one-yard for the score with 8:54 left in the first half. Tim Rowe kicked the extra point and also made good on the other five attempts in the game.

A fumble by the Tigers set up the Sailors' second score. Bruce Hendricks recovered the ball on Benton Harbor's 22-yard line and five plays later, Windatt went over from the two-yard line for a 14-0 halftime lead.

Benton Harbor wasn't really out of the game until Windatt scored twice in the third quarter. The first one came on a 48-yard run over right end and the second, from two yards out, capped a 54-yard, nine-play drive.

Windatt notched the Sailors' final touchdown with 10:55 remaining in the game on an eight-yard run. Mona Shores added a safety three minutes later as House was forced to down the ball in the end zone while attempting to punt.

"I'm not down on the kids," commented Jones. "They been playing good ball in spots."

Jones noted that his receivers didn't seem to complete their

Weather Threatening World Series

BOSTON (AP) — With the National Weather Service predicting a 100 per cent change of rain Saturday and 80 per cent Sunday, there exists a very real possibility that the World Series between the Boston Red Sox and Cincinnati Reds will stretch past the weekend.

And if that happens, it could set up a television confrontation with Monday night football — if the National Broadcasting Company has its way.

The National Weather Service Friday predicted a day-long "soaking" rain for Saturday, the day of the scheduled sixth game. Sunday's forecast is for cloudy skies with intermittent rain ending late in the day.

If rain washes out either game, it would push the series back to Monday. That possibility was on NBC's mind as soon as it heard the weekend forecast.

Carl Lindemann, the network's vice president for sports, made a formal request of Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn that if a game is played Monday, it start at 8 p.m. EDT.

If Kuhn approves, that would set up a confrontation with the American Broadcasting Company's coverage of the Monday night National Football League game between the Buffalo Bills and New York Giants.

Complicating the matter even further is the fact that baseball recently signed a lucrative contract for telecasting rights with ABC and might not wish to take any action that would alienate that network.

Defensive-Minded Panthers Get Third Straight Shutout

Hartford Blanked 16-0 In Red Arrow Tilt

By JACK WALKDEN
Staff Sports Writer
WATERVLIET — Jerry Barchett's teams have always been noted for their defensive prowess. And this season is no exception, with Hartford the latest opponent to find out. Watervliet stopped the Indians when it had to Friday night to post a 16-0 Red Arrow win before more than 1,500 fans here.

Catholic next Saturday. The Lakers take a perfect 4-0 league mark into tonight's game.

The win was the third in a row for the Panthers, all via the shutout route, and kept Watervliet's Red Arrow hopes alive. The defending league champs, now 4-1 in Red Arrow play, travel to Lake Michigan against New Buffalo.

Hartford fell for the second time after four season-opening wins.

"Watervliet is Watervliet,"

Bob Tosko sighed. "They're just as good and fundamentally sound as always."

Four times the Indians went to the well, advancing deep into Panther territory. And four times Hartford came up dry, being stopped at the Watervliet 2, 20, 19 and 11 yard lines.

"The defense did the job when it had to," Barchett said. "It was a total team effort. We hit very well on defense...very crisp hitting."

It was his defense which worried Barchett the most at the beginning of the season.

"It was the weakest part of the team," he said. "The kids have improved and improved, though. They've taken a little pride in themselves that they can play defense."

Senior Frank Gargano played his usual sparkling game, not only on offense, but also defensively. Gargano rushed for 100 yards in 19 carries and scored one touchdown. On defense he set up the first Panther TD by recovering a fumble. Gargano also made a brilliant tackle of Indian punter Ken Lowe for a 30-yard loss after a bad snap from center forced the 5-11 junior to run with the ball.

Tom Hutchinson added 60 yards in eight tries and scored one TD, while also running in both conversions.

Hartford entered the game, boasting the area's second best rushing attack and third best total offense. But the Panther defense held the Indians to a measly 134 yards rushing and just six passing.

The game's turning point came early. Gargano recovered a fumble at the Indian 37 midway through the first quarter. Just three plays later, Hutchinson broke off a 31 yard run for the first Panther TD. Hutchinson's two-point run gave Watervliet all the points it needed after just 7:22 of play.

Hartford continually threatened but the Indians didn't have it when they needed it. Five Panther fumbles gave Hutchinson excellent field position most of the game.

"We stopped ourselves," Barchett said. "It's a heck of an accomplishment when you make as many mistakes as we did and still win."

The Indians best scoring chance came on their first possession after the Panther touchdown. Hartford marched 57 yards to the Watervliet 11 for a first and 10. On a fourth and 4, Lowe was stopped one yard short.

Hartford took the second half kickoff and marched to the Panther 20. But on fourth down and 3 at the 20, Phil Mireles was halted for no gain.

Moments later a bad snap from center resulted in an eight-yard punt by Watervliet's John Hinkelman which was downed at the Panther 46. Again Hartford was able to move the ball, marching to the 19 where Randy Sealatta was stopped for no gain on fourth and one.

A fumble two plays later by Hutchinson gave Hartford the ball right back. But on fourth and six at the Panther 11, Dennis Huffman's screen pass attempt was overthrown.

Watervliet put the icing on the cake in the last three minutes after recovering a Lowe fumble on the Indian 13. It took just two plays for Gargano to score, the TD coming from four yards out.

Hutchinson's two-point run sealed the Indians' fate.

Michigan Lutheran Blanked By Mendon

MENDON — Dan Kennedy gained 165 yards on nine carries and scored three touchdowns as Mendon rolled over Michigan Lutheran 40-0 here Friday night.

Kennedy scored on runs of 75 and seven yards and on a 20-yard pass from Dan Batten. Kevin Hemple, Randy Thompkins and Mike Boggio scored the other Mendon touchdowns as the Hornets rolled up 685 yards total offense against the Titans.

Lutheran engineered one of its longest drives of the year when the Titans took the opening kickoff from their own 10-yard line down to Mendon's eight before a holding penalty set them back. Four plays later, the Titans, now 0-5 this season, had a pass intercepted to cut off the scoring threat.

"The kids did all right," said Lutheran coach Bob Gruetzmacher. "Mendon is as good as Allendale so we played a pretty good game."

Last week Allendale tore the Titans apart 83-0.

Mendon is now 5-1 for the season.

South Haven's Palanca On Mark Rams Earn 30-6 Victory

BATTLE CREEK — For most of this football season South Haven has been plagued with fumbleitis; a fact that hasn't made coach Gary Steudle very happy.

But the Rams turned the tables Friday night as they forced Harper Creek into four fumbles and beat the Beavers 30-6 here in a non-league encounter.

Sophomore quarterback Perry Palanca showed a bit of what's to come when he gets some experience behind him. He touchdown passes covering five, 11 tossed and 30 yards. He ended the night with 11 completions out of 26 attempts for 159 yards and one interception.

Jerry Hinkle was Palanca's main target as he caught five getting 41 yards and Dave Braschler 43. Frank Boughton was Harper Creek's leading runner with 68 yards on 14 carries as the Beavers rolled up 185 yards on the ground.

After a scoreless first quarter, Palanca threw his first scoring strike to Hinkle, covering five yards, for a 0-0 Ram lead. A Palanca-to-Hinkle aerial covering 18 yards set up a one-yard plunge by Palanca for the next score. The duo combined for a 30-yard scoring play late in the quarter for an 18-0 lead at the half.

Jim Sankofski scored from five-yards out in the third quarter for South Haven as it held a 24-0 lead before the Beavers, now 1-5, got on the scoreboard in the last stanza.

Harper Creek drove down to the Rams' two-yard line but fumbled the ball back to the 15 where the Beavers recovered. On the next play, Jeff Bays ran it in for the score.

Palanca hit Braschler with an 11-yard pass for a touchdown to close out the scoring.

Hot Bobcats Crush Cass For Fourth Straight Win

CASSOPOLIS — Brandywine captured its fourth straight win of the season and at the same time jumped into a deadlock for the Blossomland lead with a surprisingly easy 32-0 rout of Cassopolis here Friday night.

The rampaging Bobcats, who have outscored their foes by a Brandywine assault as the hard-running senior tailback scored on runs of five, one and two yards and finished with 152 yards on 27 totes.

The Cats were never headed as they struck for 18 points in the first quarter and led 25-0 at the half. Mike McCombs ran an interception back 30 yards for another Brandywine score while Ed Pillarski tallied on a seven-yard run in the final quarter.

Brandywine picked off five Cass aerials. Cass also lost a fumble and a blocked Ranger punt and a bad snap from center on another attempted punt led to two Brandywine first-period scores.

"We haven't played Dowagiac yet, but right now I would say Brandywine is the best club in the Blossomland," noted Cass coach Cal Titus.

Dan Findlay scored one on a four-yard run and Jerry Moore notched the other on a 13-yard scamper.

Steve Bare scored for the Redskins in the third quarter on a nine-yard run but four pass interceptions stopped Paw

U.S. Aiming For Aquatics Sweep In Pan-Am Games

MEXICO CITY (AP) — There's finally some good news for the battered, struggling forces of the United States at the VII Pan American Games: The weightlifting competition in these mixed-up, messed-up, unpredictable games finally is over.

That combined with tonight's start of aquatics competition where the confident, much-heralded Americans expect a sweep of every gold medal — should mean better days ahead for the Yanks.

Of 27 gold medals awarded in weightlifting, which ended Friday night, the incredible Cubans picked up 20, while the well-financed, favored U.S. managed managed only four. Canada got the other three.

It could have been worse, though.

Gerardo Fernandez, who won the final two Cuban weightlifting golds Friday night in super heavyweight, just couldn't get a handle on things during the clean and jerk portion of the competition. He had to settle for a silver medal behind American Bruce Wilhelm.

After the competition ended, Fernandez finally managed to hoist a Games record of 474 pounds. It didn't count in the competition, but because it was supervised officially, it was recognized as a record.

Another of the records set Friday — among 25 new Games marks so far — was in the javelin. Sam Colson of Clemson, S.C., set the record, the only problem is nobody knows exactly what it is. If anybody does know, they're not saying.

Officials at Olympic Stadium announced Colson's top throw as 83.78 meters, or 274 feet, 10½ inches. But the official electronic results service gave him 83.82, or 275 feet.

When officials tried to track down which one was right, another figure came back — 88.83 meters — more than 290 feet. More figuring was promised later.

Jonl Huntley, a lanky sophomore at Oregon State, had the second of three record-smashing performances Friday.

On her second attempt, she cleared 8 feet, 2½ inches, breaking the one-day-old mark of 6-1½ set by Canada's Diane Jones. Miss Huntley just missed an Olympic record of 6-3½ later.

The U.S. shooting team, which has done almost as well in its specialty as Cuba has in weightlifting, came up with a team clay pigeon world's record of 391 out of a possible 400.

The day was also not without the usual controversy. This time a dispute that has been boiling behind the scenes for a couple of days finally went to the committee of appeals.

It seems University of Mexico students ambushed American Larry Young along the circuitous route of the 20-kilometer walk Wednesday — just as he was catching the two Mexicans who later won.

Young, who finished third but lagged four minutes behind, said groups along the way held onto his shirt.

The appeals committee promised to consider the case.

The United States remained ahead in the medals competition with 30 golds, 29 silvers and 17 bronzes for 76 medals, while the second-place Cubans had 80 on 30 gold, 19 silver and 11 bronze. Canada was third at 8-8-14. Mexico fourth at 3-5-12, and Brazil rounded out the top five with 4-7-6.

Can Lions Slow Up Viking Steamroller? Raiders To Test Bengals

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The defending National Football Conference champion Minnesota Vikings have built up a head of steam for another run at the elusive Super Bowl championship, and they can take a giant step in that direction Sunday.

The Vikings, healthy, ready and wise, will be in their top physical shape of the year for their nationally-televised NFC Central Division battle with the Detroit Lions.

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant said Friday that offensive lineman John Henry Ward and strong safety Jeff Wright would return to the starting lineup for the game.

Ward will make his first start for Minnesota since he suffered a broken leg against the Lions two years ago. He had spent most of the time rehabilitating the injured leg. The 6-foot-4, 250-pound Ward replaces Andy Mautner at left guard.

Wright returns to strong safety for Terry Brown, and Ed Marinaro will be at halfback for Brent McClanahan, who will miss the game with a sprained ankle. Wright has missed the last six weeks after he had knee surgery to repair an injury suffered in the exhibition season.

McClanahan, Bob Berry and Doug Kingsriter are not expected to play for the Vikings because of injuries.

Detroit safety Dick Jauron is doubtful because of a thigh bruise.

The undefeated veteran Minnesota unit has averaged a victory margin of just under 20 points a game while romping to the top of the heap in the Central Division with a 4-0 mark. The Vikings rank second in NFC total offense and defense.

Detroit, the lone challenger to Minnesota's long reign in the NFC, is 3-1. The Lions rank seventh in offense and sixth in defense including first against the rush.

Minnesota is ranked first in passing and the Lions secondary ranks ninth in pass defense. Among the 13 NFC teams in Sunday's other games it's Oakland at Cincinnati, Miami at New York, Green Bay at Dallas, Cleveland at Denver, Atlanta at Los Angeles, Washington at Houston, Chicago at Pittsburgh, Philadelphia at St. Louis, Baltimore at New England, New Orleans at San Francisco and Kansas City at San Diego.

The Bengals, also unbeaten, send their NFL-leading defense and whip-armed quarterback

Ken Anderson against the Raiders, who will be trying to rebound from the 42-10 shellacking they absorbed in Kansas City, their worst defeat in 11 seasons.

It may be a bit premature, but both the Dolphins and Jets are in the running for the playoffs this season — and both are running after Buffalo. The high-powered Bills, unbeaten and leading the American Conference East, play Monday night against the visiting New York Giants. The Dolphins are 3-1 and the Jets 2-2.

Dallas is No. 1 in that department — and the Cowboys are the fourth unbeaten club, two facts which bodes ill for Green Bay. Bart Starr's Packers are still looking for their first victory of the season. The Browns are doing the same for new Coach Forrest Gregg, taking an 0-4 record into Denver.

The Rams, with James Harris at quarterback, have been unable to put together the powerhouse offense they supposedly possess. And they face a flock of Falcons who are displaying not only spirit on offense behind Steve Bartkowski but also an improved defense.

The Redskins-Oilers game matches a pair of hard-running rookies, Washington's Mike Thomas and Houston's Don Hardeman. And Washington, having seen St. Louis' Terry Metcalf break loose for a 93-yard touchdown run with a kickoff, will be trying to cool off the Oilers' Billy "White Shoes" Johnson, who has made a habit of running wild with kickoffs and punts.

Chicago will be trying to halt Pittsburgh's eight-game winning streak against NFC opponents while the Cardinals, last year's NFC East champs but only 2-2 this year, will be trying to rebound from their loss to the Redskins by whipping Philadelphia.

The Colts, despite their 1-3 record, have been one of the surprise teams this year. They played tough against Los Angeles and Oakland, a pair of so-called powerhouses, and nearly knocked off Buffalo last week. Now they face the winless Patriots.

New Orleans and San Francisco share 1-3 records in the NFC West so early ownership of the cellar is at stake. Kansas City, coming off its rout of the Raiders, is going against a winless San Diego team, but one which has shown surprisingly tough defense on occasion.

All Eyes On Morgan Now Optometrist Leading In Texas Open

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Optometrist Gil Morgan, the only eye doctor on the Professional Golf Association tour, is treating fans to the spectacle of a 10-under-par first half in the last PGA tournament of the season.

Morgan of Wewoka, Okla., fired a 68 at the 7,038-yard, par-72 Woodlake Golf Club course Friday for a two-round total of 134 and sole possession of the lead at the Texas Open Golf Tournament.

Ralph Johnston, finished a stroke back after a 68 which left him with a two-round 135. Bubbed at 137 were first-day co-leader Miller Barber, Charles Coody, Lon Hinkle and Richard Crawford.

Morgan claimed five birdies and a bogey Friday under clear skies and a 68 Thursday in winds and a chilly drizzle. It's the young optometrist's first time in two years on the tour to be the halfway leader in any tournament.

"You ought to be able to keep it up, but you never know," Morgan, 29, said happily at a news conference after his round. "I'm in a position I never was in before."

Morgan graduated from Southern College of Optometry at Memphis, Tenn., in 1972 and decided that for a professional golf career, "Now's the time."

This year Morgan is one of six or seven players trying to move up into the top 50 money winners on the PGA tour. That status would mean an exemption from qualifying in next year's tournaments.

He has earned $33,897 so far this year and must clear between $7,000 and $8,000 at the Texas Open to make it into the top 60. First prize is $25,000.

"I'm trying to get into a position where I can play a little golf...and keep my hand in optometry a bit," he said.

As jubilant as Morgan is, Johnston, who was alone in second-place after shooting a 68 for a 135 total.

"I'd say those are the two best consecutive putting rounds in my life," Johnston said, "and either round is the best since my rookie year."

Far less happy was Miller Barber, who tied for the first-day lead at 66 but dropped in the pack after a 71 Friday. Barber refused to attend a news conference after his round.

"I didn't play that bad," Barber said later in the day. "Just nothing happened."

Barber made 33 puts Friday in claiming his 71 while Thursday he recorded 28 puts for a 66. "So there's the difference," he said.

Top money winners for the season entered in the tournament, John Mahaffey and Lee Trevino, both shot just under par again.

Trevino carded a 70 Friday after a 71 on Thursday. Mahaffey had a 70 Thursday and a 71 Friday.

Defending champion Terry Diehl shot a 70 Friday after a 72 par on Thursday.

ALVIN DARK
Manager Fired

Mauch Next A's Manager? Dark Fired By Finley!

OAKLAND (AP) — Alvin Dark is out as manager of the Oakland A's and says he neither knows nor cares why he was not rehired by owner Charles O. Finley, still "one of my best friends in baseball."

Dark told a news conference Friday night Finley informed him by telephone from Chicago Thursday morning he would not be hired for a third year as A's manager and asked: "Do you have any questions?"

"You don't owe me an explanation of any kind," Dark said he replied, so none was made.

"Apparently Mr. Finley didn't want to work with me any more," said Dark, 53, an infielder in the National League for 4 years and a major league manager for 12 seasons with five different clubs. "It's his prerogative. He owns the ball club."

Dark, zealous in espousing his religion since 1971, said he would seek another baseball job because, "I think I can serve the Lord better in baseball than out of baseball."

Dark said he couldn't confirm a report the A's managerial job was being offered to his longtime friend and golfing partner, Gene Mauch, who was fired by the Montreal Expos after seven seasons. Dark said Mauch would be "great" as his successor.

The Oakland club announced tersely only a few hours before Dark's news conference that Dark was not to be rehired. But Thursday night the Birmingham Post-Herald reported Finley had reached that decision and offered the job to Mauch.

Finley was unavailable to reporters Friday.

Flames Smothered By Islanders

From Associated Press
Coach Fred Crottenberg was dejected after his Atlanta Flames dropped a 2-0 National Hockey League decision to the New York Islanders.

"I can't look down my lineup and find many guys who played well. Maybe some of them were trying too much," he said.

Islanders Coach Al Arbour was naturally delighted.

The Capitals held a 3-1 lead in the second period as Harland Monahan, Stan Gilbertson and Greg Joly allied. Dave Breckinridge and Jim Neilson scored California's other goals.

Kerry Ketter's score at 17:36 of the third period lifted Edmonton into its tie with Toronto, then both teams battled through a scoreless extra session. Paul Henderson scored twice while Jeff Jacques and Richard Fardal tallied once each for the Toros. Other Edmonton goals were by Blair MacDonald, Danny Spring and Doug Barrie.

Gene Sobchuk scored on two power play goals as Cincinnati posted its second victory of the season. The Stingers jumped out to a 3-0 first period lead and never really were threatened.

Three goals by former Roadrunner Don Borgeson carried the Spurs past Phoenix. It was the expansion Spurs' first WHA victory.

routes in the second half. "They weren't running their complete patterns and weren't reading the defensive coverage," he said. "Mike read the coverage good but when he hit the receiver it would go right through his hands."

"We've got to try and convince Schultz not to get for it all at once," Jones added. "That's his biggest problem."

Jones indicated that one of drawbacks in this season's club is inexperience. "We've got juniors and seniors who are sophomores in experience," he said. "On the whole varsity, there are maybe three people who have played together for three years."

Jones pointed out that his starting end, Bennie Bowers, hasn't played football since his freshman year while tight end David Miles has been out for two years and defensive end Fredrick Woods didn't play last year.

"One thing is for sure," said Jones. "I hear something new about my club every week."

Police School Ruling Oct. 27

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — An injunction closing the State Police training school will stand at least until Oct. 27.

U.S. District Court Judge Wendell Miles took a request to lift the injunction under advisement Friday and said after more than four hours of hearings that he expects to issue his decision Oct. 27.

The injunction was issued at the request of a 23-year-old Lansing man who says he was the victim of reverse discrimination because he is white.

Fred Gibson, who testified Friday he has wanted to be a state trooper "as long as I can remember," contended in his suit that minority applicants with lower scores than his were accepted for the 17-week school, which was slated to start Sept. 22.

Gibson was not one of the 84 persons accepted for that training class.

The original injunction closing the school was issued by Ingham County Circuit Judge James Kallman in mid-September, a few days before classes were to begin.

Testimony Friday indicated half of the 84 trainees in that group were either from minority races or were women.

State Police Col. George Halverson testified there is no money to conduct another training school before next July unless the legislature provides more funding.

Gibson said by that time he will be a college graduate and will be accepted because college graduates are given preference over those without degrees.

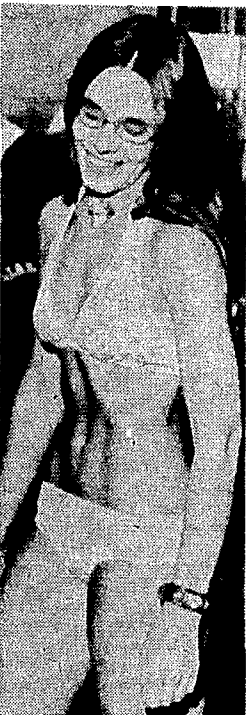

Earlier Friday, Judge Miles combined Gibson's suit with one by the U.S. Justice Department which claims the State Police discriminate against minorities and women in their hiring and promotion.

"It would appear to the court that the State of Michigan is being whipsawed" between the two suits, the judge said.

Later, Miles said the suits mean "the state has been put in an almost untenable position."

Judge Miles said if trial of the combined suits is necessary, the proceedings will begin Nov. 24.

An official from the state Civil Service Department testified that about 340 persons received higher scores than some of the individuals accepted for the school.

Government Found Liable In Child's Brain Damage

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Lawyers are attempting to work out a settlement after the federal government was found liable for brain damage suffered by a Battle Creek, Mich., child after injections 11 years ago.

U.S. District Court Judge Raymond J. Pettine ruled the government was responsible for mental damage suffered by Monique Caron, 12, the daughter of a couple now living in Woonsocket. The malpractice suit had asked for $5 million in damages.

Ernest and Annette Caron charged their daughter suffered brain damage from convulsions brought on after she was given a series of shots at an Air Force dispensary near Battle Creek when she was four months old.

Judge Pettine ruled in the family's favor after hearing expert testimony which indicated a direct relationship between the shots and the convulsions.

The shots were administered by an unidentified enlisted airman at Custer Air Force Base in 1963, where Caron was on active duty. They consisted of a combination shot for diphtheria, whooping cough and tetanus, as well as a typhoid injection and an oral polio vaccine.

The child began having convulsions an hour later.

It was not until 1972 that one of the many doctors consulted by the family said the injections caused the convulsions, prompting the Carons to institute the lawsuit.

Testimony in the trial showed the amount of typhoid vaccine given the child was suitable for a 250-pound man. One doctor said the dosage would be "almost sub-lethal" for a four-month-old infant.

Monique's present condition, as described in testimony, is that of a mentally defective youngster with disturbed behavior.

Nuclear Physicist Lauds Windmill Power Source

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — A nuclear physicist who helped develop the atomic bomb during World War II said Friday the nation should build windmills, not nuclear reactors, to solve its energy shortages.

"The pursuit of nuclear power is unsafe, unwise and unnecessary," said Dr. David Inglis, a University of Massachusetts nuclear physics professor.

Inglis, a former staff physicist at Los Alamos, N.M., and later at Argonne National Laboratory in Chicago, proposed that electricity-generating windmills be constructed across the Great Plains, where wind conditions are favorable, and on floating platforms along both coasts.

He was among a half-dozen speakers at a public conference on "The Nuclear Option" at the University of Michigan.

"We are not taking all reasonable precautions in respect to nuclear power plant safety and there are other options to nuclear power," Inglis said. "We should put all nuclear power plants underground, and I have been trying to convince the government of that since 1957."

"We need a lot of electricity in this country and you could get it out of wind power. Why don't we have thousands of these machines? There are people out of work in Michigan who made big automobiles — they should be able to make big windmills."

Dr. Ralph R. Lapp, former head of atomic energy research for the Department of Defense, opposed the suggestions.

"I believe nuclear power will have to be an important part of the power picture, and even then it won't be until the year 2040 before nuclear power will provide 50 per cent of our needs," said Lapp, who once headed the U.S. Office of Naval Research.

He said nuclear power is safe, and without it "the U.S. economy, the status of the nation and the world and our standard of living will be jeopardized."

"The American people are not yet convinced there is an energy crisis and the people in Washington who represent the public in Congress don't believe in an energy crisis," he added.

PSC Staff Recommends Consumers Rate Increase

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Public Service Commission staff has recommended that Consumers Power Co. get a $60.4 million rate increase.

The boost would cost an average residential customer an additional $1.50 a month, staffers estimate. Some 1.1 million electric customers throughout much of outstate Michigan and places adjacent to the Detroit metropolitan area would be affected.

Consumers had asked for a rate increase of about $118 million.

Any increase would be in addition to increases resulting from higher fuel costs, which automatically are passed along to customers.

The three-member PSC is not bound by the staff report, but in many cases has issued a final-rate order close to recommendations.

Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley not only opposes the recommended increase but is calling for a $78.8 million rate rollback. Kelley has consistently fought increases in utility rate cases.

The staff recommendation comes nine months after the PSC granted the Jackson-based utility a record $66 million electric rate increase. It is certain to be controversial in a year of steadily rising utility rates and steadily rising complaints about them.

About $37.6 million of the proposed increase is recommended to cover increased Consumers Power operating expenses. Most of the balance is based on a staff estimate of the effect of increased costs on the company's earnings.

Hearings on the recommendation are scheduled to begin next week.

Democrats Meet Nov. 1

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The Michigan Democratic Party will hold a public hearing Nov. 1 in Lansing to discuss proposed rule changes for selecting state delegates to the national convention in 1976. The Democratic National Committee approved all but one portion of the state party's plan for delegate selection. The committee said selection must include more public participation. The hearing will consider deleting that section of the plan entirely, or replacing it with procedures to allow district caucuses to select district delegates and the Democratic State Central Committee to select at-large delegates. The hearing will be at 9:30 a.m. in the Capitol Park Hotel. Democrats who want to testify must contact state chairperson Morley Winograd.

Deputy Smith said Alti was headed north on Red Arrow highway when he apparently veered across the road striking the cement island that divides Red Arrow near the I-94 overpass.

BH Budget Hearing Set

The Benton Harbor board of education will hold a public hearing Monday at 8:30 p.m. in Fairplain Northwest school on a proposed $16,370,587 budget for 1975-76.

After the public hearing in which comments are sought from district residents, the board will hold its regular meeting with adoption of the budget on the agenda. Also on the agenda is ratification of a master teachers contract with the Benton Harbor Education Association. The district's budget is in three parts: Part I is the regular school program and capital outlay for $13,836,000. Part II is compensatory programs, $1,966,000. The balance in Part III is food service.

The total budget is $780,978 more than last year. Additional revenues are from an increase in state aid, and a $13 million boost in state equalized valuation which means a bigger tax base.

Others named Thursday to the commission included Wayne State University President George Gullen, Marcellus Ivory, Region 1 director of the United Auto Workers, Stanley Winkelman, president of Winkelman Stores, and other noted civic leaders, businessmen and educators. The 55-member commission and a staff of technical advisors will report to the judge on how well the integration plan is working.

Joseph Calls For Local Decisions

poor and blacks live, and they are entitled to special consideration when and if monies are received on their behalf by the county.

In addition, the people of these two areas should be represented on more of the boards, committees and commissions of the county than at present.

At present, with the exception of grossly under-represented CETA board, all other county boards are a reflection of the predominant culture, with no representation from the minority population in the county.

Benton Harbor and Benton Township share in the need for fair and equal treatment in view of the fact that their combined population is greater than that of most of the other municipalities combined and that they are entitled to self-determination and control of the programs where their interests are involved.

The people of this part of the county are shortchanged because even though they have an elected official on the county board, they have little or no input into the decision-making process that determines much of what happens in their neighborhood and to their lives. These decisions are made in the chambers of power that leave them on the outside.

The only way to build a community is to have the people in that community on the decision-making process. That means power. Your editorial states that political patronage is not a sincere way to help minorities. It appears that the Chamber of Commerce and the County Board of Commissioners are doing a fairly good job of providing jobs for friends, relatives and cronies, and if that's helping minorities, I can't see how. It would be much more helpful if these governmental twins would stop grabbing each and every federal dollar, making jobs for their cronies, and instead put the money into jobs for the unemployed, the poor, the minorities and the female heads of household that presently are being denied equal access to the jobs available and funded by federal programs.

Mr. Banyon, if you condone the discrimination in jobs and affirmative action there is no need to complain about welfare.

The public sector, nor the private sector is concerned about hiring people, yet a delegation continues to harp on welfare reform. Are people to starve? There are few blacks working at the newspapers in this community. Few working at the Chamber of Commerce, and pitifully few at the county government. Welfare is the only recourse to people who are denied opportunity to enter the mainstream of employment and self-sufficiency.

I have lived in this community all my life, and I want to be a part of the solution to the problems of race relations, and have worked to solve this end. However, in the face of such editorials as the one in today's paper, I have grave concerns about the future ability of black leaders being able to sit down and settle problems with a feeling of mutual respect and trust. Your attack is inaccurate, misleading, vindictive, and a reflection, I am sorry to say, of the county board "the way it is".

I had hopes that you would write about the county government, the way it should be:

1. Providing each and every citizen equal opportunity to compete for a job, and providing for affirmative action where minorities have been traditionally excluded from the job market.

2. Providing for the development of community control through the process of placing minorities and women on boards and commissions and committees where decisions about county government operations are made.

3. Providing for the fair and equal justice in the county courts, for humane treatment of the poor, and for respect of the old, disabled, and working poor of our community.

4. Providing a climate of integrity where each county commissioner would adhere to high standards of conduct in relation to his actions with the county in matters of finance and commerce.

5. Providing for separation of the commercial element in our community from the governmental element, erasing clouds of doubt about the ability of the county government to deal with integrity on matters where there might be conflict of interest between business interests and the best interest of all people.

To my disappointment, the county has not lived up to these ideals, and my own faith in the process has been diminished by their failure. However, because of my continued belief that America is mine, too, I intend to keep on fighting for these goals, and to stand up and speak out where necessary to assure the people of Berrien County that County Commissioners can be sensitive and responsive to the needs of the people who elected them.

Many persons who are now concerned about the federal funds being cut off for awhile, on previous occasions, stated that there was too much federal money coming into Berrien County. Why do they scream now?

Bill Joseph, Berrien County Commissioner, 506 Green Street, Benton Harbor, Michigan

Tot Death Leads To Berrien Suit

A Niles woman whose 3-year-old son drowned in a swimming pool last spring has filed suit in Berrien Circuit court against the owners of the pool and claims there was negligence in a rescue attempt by the homeowner.

The suit was filed on behalf of Christine Thornton, of 2501 North Fifth street, stemming from the death of her son, Demetrius, on April 20. While no dollar amount was specified in the suit, Niles Atty. Peter Smith, who filed the suit, said at least $75,000 damages are sought.

Named defendants, and identified as the owners of the pool, were Bernard and June Carpenter, of 2519 North Fifth street.

The suit contends Demetrius and a friend were attracted to the pool "out of childish curiosity," and crawled through a hole in a fence which surrounds the pool. Demetrius entered the water, which the suit says was four to six feet deep, and drowned.

Carpenter attempted to rescue the boy, the suit charges, but was negligent by not entering the water but instead probing for the body with a metal pole, which the suit contends "bruised and battered" the boy.

The suit also accuses the Carpenters of negligence by allegedly failing to enclose the pool so children could not get near it, and by not draining the pool or covering it.

In another circuit court suit, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ostrander, Watervliet, seek $300,000 for alleged injuries the suit says Ostrander sustained when he was pinned between two cars in the driveway of his home.

Named defendants were Donald Phillips and his son, Gerald, of 468 Sutherland, Watervliet. The son was identified as a friend of the Ostrand's son.

The suit claims the younger Phillips went to the Ostrander home at 907 Prospect court, and when his car wouldn't start, Ostrander helped start the boy's car with jumper cables. When Ostrander went to remove the cables, the other car moved forward, pinning him between the autos, the suit says.

Ostrander sustained knee and leg injuries in the Oct. 14, 1972, accident, the suit says. Donald Phillips was identified in the suit as the owner of the car his son drove.

Hoosier Accused Of Assault

A 22-year-old Stevensville man was injured and another man arrested as the result of a cutting incident Friday, Berrien sheriff's deputies reported.

Treated and released from Berrien General hospital for a facial wound was Robert M. Chouteau, 22, Chalet, 62, Stevensville. Arrested on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon was Gualberto Santana, 32, South Bend.

According to police, the incident occurred after an argument between the two men while they were fishing about 2:30 p.m. in the St. Joseph river near Berrien Springs.

Black History Project

PONTIAC, Mich. (A) — Blacks who remember life in Pontiac before 1940 are "talking history" for an Oakland University project. The university is working to collect tape-recorded "books" for a full oral history library. Johnetta Bruzell said the project's goal is to record history and traditions of ethnic and racial groups throughout Michigan. After completing the black history project, she hopes to make similar studies in Latino and Indian communities and in black homesteading groups in southwestern Michigan.

Judge Noel Fox released Thomas on his recognizance pending sentencing for which no date was set. Thomas was arrested Wednesday by Benton Harbor and St. Joseph police.

Bids Are Asked For I-94 Overpass Barriers In Area

LANSING — Bids will be accepted by the state highway department Wednesday on a $330,000 project to replace railings on bridges that cross I-94 in Berrien, Van Buren and Kalamazoo counties, according to a department spokesman.

The spokesman said bridge railings are to be replaced by concave concrete barriers as a safety measure.

The barriers will deflect vehicles back into the lane of traffic when they are struck and they will be more durable than the standard bridge railings, the spokesman added.

The new barriers will be installed on Napier avenue in

Mrs. Ford Says Poor Need Jobs

for which it receives public tax dollars. At present there are only three blacks on any county board or commission or committee outside of CETA, and CETA is grossly underrepresented in terms of the people the funds are to serve. It is the responsibility of the anti-poverty agency to address these shortcomings.

What's wrong with getting jobs for the poor? The editorial accuses me of building a patronage army of poor people. Does the newspaper deny that poor people are better off working... and you can believe that they will work at BCA, than trying to get on welfare? Either you are for independence and employment, or for apathy and welfare, a traditional form of slavery. Do I understand from your criticism of building job opportunities that you resist the thought of poor people getting a piece of the decision-making action?

Here in Berrien County it appears that wherever you see the County Government, you also see the Chamber of Commerce. Is the Planning and Social Services Committee a unit of the Chamber of Commerce, or is the Chamber of Commerce a unit of the Planning and Social Services Committee of the County Government. Either way it seems that the interests of a small population is being served by either, and that population is certainly not the poor or minority.

Before the Declaration of Independence certain lands belonging to the King of England were presented to certain favored persons as perpetual gifts. These lands, and the people who lived on them, were the chatties of the wealth, land, and powerful men of the new world.

Berrien County is still doing business as if this were 1675 instead of 1975, when, according to my patriotic upbringing "we hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal".

Berrien County Government is a puppet kingdom, ruled by and for the rich and powerful families who have not heretofore had any challenge of their divine right to rule.

I was warned recently about the danger of losing favor with the "400" if I took a public posture relative to the rights of poor people.

I know now that the "400" is in reality, only forty or so people, the manipulators of the commercial, business and political life of this county.

These with the "divine right" use county officials as puppets, with a master puppeteer pulling the strings and getting rubber stamp approval of each and every whim that will satisfy the self-interest of this select group.

Decisions reflect only the special interests of those elitists whose founding fathers controlled this community so long before them, named public and private facilities after them and were unchallenged in their dispensing of favors to the favored or punishment to the naughty. This has gone on long enough. The working class, the poor of all races have begun to recognize that their rights are being abrogated by those who have no concept of the problems of unemployment, hunger, cold or discomfort. There is no way that they can, and who blame them? That is no reason, however, that those of us who are not strangers to poverty should sit back and continue as servants and humble obedient vassals simply to avoid confrontation with those who care nothing about our needs.

Frederick Douglass has said, "Power yields nothing without a struggle. It never has and it never will." To expect the powerful to relinquish the reins of power simply because we want to share them is to expect the impossible. To expect to grow crops without plowing the soil is as fruitless as to expect to win easy victories. We may not get all we pay for in this life, but we will most certainly pay for all we get."

The powerful will pay any price in terms of welfare to keep the poor down. They are emboldened to print editorials in defiance of getting jobs for the poor, however. Each and every reader who wants to build a better life for himself or his children should see the difference between what is being said and what is being done. Welfare is continued dependence. Work is freedom. Berrien County Action will continue to press for job opportunities, fair treatment by the county government, an end to the puppet government that denies fair and equal treatment by units of county government, and for upward mobility and shared power for the poor in this community. If the powerful manipulators with "divine right to rule" want to quarrel with this, so be it.

Helen L. Ford, Executive Director, Berrien County Action, Inc.

Coloman Hurt As Car Rolls

A 44-year-old Coloman man apparently escaped serious injury when his car rolled over four times near Riverside and Zoschke roads in Benton township about 7 Friday night, according to Berrien sheriff's deputies.

Treated and released from Memorial hospital was Rob R. Davis, 44, route 1, Coloma. Deputy Ross Brumbaugh reported the Davis auto failed to make a curve on Riverside road near Zoschke road, Benton township, and rolled over four times.

Davis was ticketed for reckless driving.

Poisoning Probe
On In House

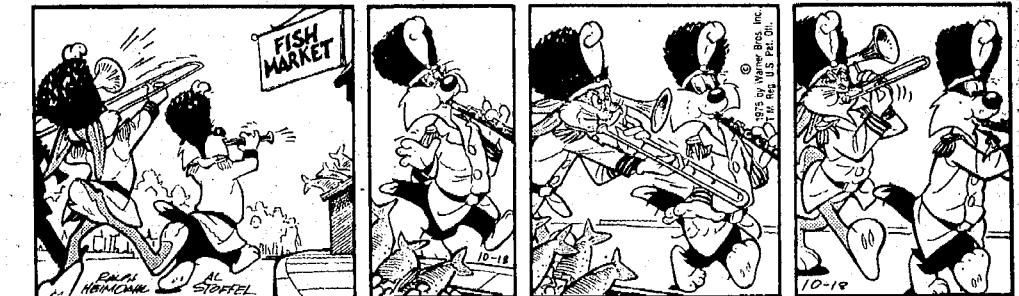

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A probe into how state agencies handled a massive livestock poisoning incident has been launched by a special House committee.

The investigation, according to Rep. Donald J. Albosta, D-St. Charles, will focus on what amounts of a toxic fire retardant, commonly known as PBB, was consumed by animals and the public. The chemical was accidentally mixed into animal feed distributed by Michigan Farm Bureau Services.

The market will remain open, however, through the first week of November if weather allows. Starting Monday, growers will pay fees only on fruit actually sold. USDA Market News Service will also discontinue market prices, but will gather apple prices from western Michigan shipping points and offer them via its recorded message telephone 825-1086.

AP average of 60 stocks closed Friday at 263.7, up 2.3 from a week ago, while the Dow Jones average of 30 Industrials closed at 832.18, up 8.27 from last Friday. Investor uncertainty concerning the New York City situation dictated the slow trading week, following an upbeat beginning due largely to Vice President Rockefeller's weekend stand in favor of federal aid to New York. Commissioner Selent, seconded by Commissioner Hanley moved approval of the foregoing report and that the Director of Finance be authorized and have vouchers in payment of the several amounts. Roll call related as follows: Yeas: Commissioners: Gast, Gillespie, Hanley, Selent and Smith. Nays: None. Absent: None. Motion declared carried.

The City Attorney reported that he has had further negotiations with ERWIN L. PEDDE and BETTY PEDDE, his wife, concerning the rehabilitation of their house at 911 Harrison Avenue, St. Joseph, Michigan, as well as conversations with members of their family and building inspector Carl Conklin. Mr. Conklin reported to the Commission that the Peddes had stated that they intended to do much of the work themselves and had applied for a building permit. He also said that he did not wish to grant the permit until the City Commission had determined a reasonable time for its completion.

After discussion Commissioner Gillespie, seconded by Commissioner Selent moved that no further action be taken until December 15, 1975, and that the building inspector be authorized to issue a building permit for the work necessary to bring the house up to code.

Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Gast, Gillespie, Hanley, Selent and Smith. Nays: None. Absent: None. Motion declared carried.

The Manager read a letter from the ST. JOSEPH PLANNING COMMISSION requesting an additional 90 days to consider the request of DR. STOUT for a special permit to convert the house at 1401 Wolcott Avenue into a dental office.

After discussion Commissioner Selent, seconded by Commissioner Gillespie, moved that the Planning Commission be authorized to defer action on Dr. Stout's application until January 9, 1976.

Roll call resulted as follows: Yeas: Commissioners Gast, Gillespie, Selent and Smith. Nays: Commissioner Hanley. Absent: None. Motion declared carried.

The Manager read a letter from THOMAS A. WEBB, Manager of the Berrien County Road Commission in which the writer reported that the Road Commission feels that the improvement of the intersection of Cleveland Avenue and Hilltop Road is vital to the community, and that the time for completion of the improvement of Hilltop Road East of Cleveland Avenue could not be estimated until further information was received concerning the intersection at Hilltop Road and the proposed penetrator.

The Mayor read a release in which he accepted a sheet of local TB and emphysema seals from NORTHERN BERRIEN COUNTY LOCAL CHAIRMAN MARY R. DEFOE and JOAN EBERLY, Director of Nurses, Berrien County Health Department. All funds raised by the use of seals will be used in Berrien County for both programs and educational literature in the schools and for the loan of positive pressure breathing units (IPPV) for emphysema and asthma patients upon written request from a doctor.

Mayor Smith also read a communication from REPRESENTATIVE CASMER P. OGONOWSKI advising that the Michigan House of Representatives Special Casino Gambling Study Committee will be holding a public hearing on the feasibility and ramifications of casino gambling for our state in Kalamazoo, Michigan on Tuesday, October 14, 1975, and requests that he testify before the committee at that time.

In response to a question from Commissioner Gast, the City Manager reported that the lot at Lookout Park would be paved this year.

Mayor Smith closed the meeting by reading a resolution mourning the passing of Martin W. Kasischke, October 2, 1975, which the Commission unanimously approved.

RESOLUTION

Resolved that the City Commission of the City of St. Joseph mourns the passing of Martin W. Kasischke, October 2, 1975.

A lifelong resident of the City of St. Joseph, Mr. Kasischke, or "Martin" as he was known to his many friends, was employed for many years by the old Cooper-Wells & Company, then the leading industry in the City. Mr. Kasischke was first appointed to the St. Joseph City Commission on June 8, 1955. He was re-elected in April, 1956, and in April, 1961, to three-year terms. As a City Commissioner, he held the respect of his peers and the confidence of those he served. As a "balance wheel", he was frequently able to bring the Commission into agreement on knotty problems.

Quiet, unassuming, steady, and easy to communicate with, Martin was always aware of the needs of his City. He was a devoted family man, was a life member of St. Joseph Masonic Lodge No. 437, a member of St. Joseph Elks Lodge No. 541, and a charter member of the St.

Joseph Lions Club.

The City will miss the counsel and dedication of Martin W. Kasischke.

RESOLVED FURTHER that this resolution be spread upon the records of this Commission, that a copy be sent to his family, and that the Commission stand adjourned in his memory.

Charles J. Rhodes,
City Clerk

Franklin H. Smith
Mayor

NICOLE, OLIVER, AND TRUSTY MODEL A

They Tour U.S. In A Model A

DETROIT (AP) — New Zealanders Oliver and Nicole Midgley wanted to do something exciting for their honeymoon and have gotten their wish by touring the United States in a 1930 Model A Ford.

The Midgleys, now at the 10,500-mile mark of their 16,000-mile trek, say the effort has been worth it.

The couple was married last April in their hometown of Christchurch, New Zealand, just after they finished rebuilding the Model A.

"The trip has been far greater than we could have imagined," said Mrs. Midgley, 22, a registered nurse.

Midgley, 27, has some experience that came in handy during the car's two major mechanical breakdowns. He is a mechanical engineer and an auto racing buff.

The Midgleys shipped their car to Los Angeles in June, then commenced their trek at 45 miles an hour over the Los Angeles freeways.

"We'd never seen a freeway or been on one," Mrs. Midgley said. "It took us three hours to get out of downtown Los Angeles. We've stuck to the back roads and smaller highways since then."

One breakdown occurred in the Nevada desert, when the car's timing gear broke and Midgley spent six hours repairing it. The ignition wires caught fire and burned in Banff National Park in Alberta, Canada.

But honeymooning in the Model A has had some high points, they said. For instance, many older people tell them about their own honeymoons in the same type car.

After touring the Ford Motor Co. plant and Greenfield Village, where many other antique cars are on display, the Midgleys plan to head back across the country and arrive in New Zealand sometime in late November.

And the Model A? Back in New Zealand, the Midgleys say, they'll keep it as their family car.

Task Force Tries New Welfare Tack

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A House Republican task force has proposed creating a new state Department of Employment and Social Services in singlehandedly return the unemployed back to the job market. The plan is included in the fourth volume of ideas on how to steady and spur the state's economy from the House Republican Caucus Appropriations Task Force. Chairman of the task force, Rep. Melvin DeStigter, R-Ann Arbor, said the proposed department would provide all the resources necessary to put the unemployed who are dependent on welfare "back into the flow of things." The proposed department would incorporate the current Social Services Department, the Employment Security Commission and several vocational education functions now scattered in five state agencies, the report said. "What you have right now is all sorts of separate entities working in opposite directions," DeStigter said. "But what we've been saying to people is, 'Hey, you've got a lot of needs, but we can only do a little bit here,' then we're sending them to another bureau." The task force also proposed that welfare benefits be adjusted so those who refuse to work receive no more than those who are unable to work.

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR FREDA ADLER, criminologist and author of "Sisters in Crime: The Rise of the New Female Criminal"
Are certain crimes more likely to be committed by one sex than the other?—F.N., Dover, Del.

● Until quite recently, the female offender confined her activities to prostitution and shoplifting. But as women strive to gain equal status with men in education and business, they also are rejecting the role of "second class" criminal and turning to the more lucrative crimes of burglary, robbery, auto theft, embezzlement and extortion. As for crimes of violence, cultural myths rather than genetic facts supported our erroneous beliefs regarding the "weaker sex." Anthropologists, behavioral scientists and now criminal justice personnel are discovering that women are inherently equal to men in their capacity to engage in aggressive behavior.

FOR WOODY ALLEN

Who is your favorite comedian?—N.B., Austin, Texas

● Bob Hope. When I was a teenager, I adopted his persona. Before going out on a date, I could only remain calm by convincing myself that I was Bob Hope. But to tell you the truth, most comedians scare me. If I'm scheduled to go on the Carson show or "Merv Griffin" show, I call up first to make sure no one else that's funny will be on with me. I just can't stand the kind of competition that requires me to be aggressive.

FOR CHARLTON HESTON, star of "Midway"

I'm confused. You keep telling people that acting is an insane way to make a living and that you have to be a nut to do it. So why are you an actor?—Henrietta O'Brien, Putney, Ga.

● What I'm trying to point out is that the overwhelming majority of Screen Actors Guild members earn an average of less than $2,500 a year. I keep on acting because I've been lucky enough to make a good living at it. Others aren't so lucky.

FOR MARV FLEMING, professional football star

Coach Don Shula of the Miami Dolphins is often compared to Vince Lombardi. As the only NFL player who worked for both, do you think they're alike?—Richard Ryan, North Tonawanda, N.Y.

● Well, both were disciplinarians who demanded a lot. But Shula is more personable. You can walk up to him after practice and say, "Coach, can I see you a minute?" He'll stop and talk to you. With Lombardi you had to make an appointment.

FOR POLLY BERGEN

Why do you always wear your hair short?—R.B., Joliet, Ill.

● No one over 35 (and I won't say how much) should have long hair. Women who do are doing themselves a terrible disservice. After that age, long hair has outlived its usefulness... it drags the face down. And since one's face is inclined to droop, anyway, when one gets on in years, why give Mother Nature a helping hand? I believe in resisting, not helping.

FOR KAYE BALLARD

Since you've never been married, how can you give such realistic portrayals of wives and mothers?—Kenneth Schwartz, Cliffside Park, N.J.

● You don't have to be dead to do a dying scene! Seriously, I admire, respect and have great empathy for mothers. I guess that's what does it—identifying with the character you're playing.

FOR JOE PEPITONE, former baseball star

In your autobiography, you say that Frank Sinatra pulled a .45 on his friend Harry Guardino simply because Harry didn't like the opera music Frank was playing at his home. Has Frank suggested that you are going to get some new black eyes?—Fred Baxter, Sacramento, Calif.

● I haven't heard from Frank since my book was published. But I'm absolutely certain that if he'd been displeased I would have by now. No question about it.

FOR VINCENT BUGLIOSI, author of "Helter Skelter: The True Story of the Manson Murders"

Why wasn't Charles Manson charged with the murder of the baby Sharon Tate was carrying?—Mrs. Marleine Dunn, Santa Fe, N.M.

● Under California law in 1969, murder was defined as the killing of a human being, and legally an unborn baby was not considered to be a human being. However, in 1970, the California Penal Code was amended to read that murder was the killing of a human being or fetus.

FOR ARLENE FRANCIS

Who was the most unusual guest on "What's My Line"?—B.G., Cocoa, Fla.

● A man who made contact lenses for chickens. He said he did that so the chickens could see their eggs for the first time. We couldn't decide if he was telling the truth or not. What do you think?

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

What has Leonard Nimoy been doing since "Star Trek" went off the air?—J.T., Glendale, Calif.

● Quite a bit. He's working on his third book, "I Am Not Spock." The other two were on photography and poetry. "No one realizes I'm an incurable romantic," says Nimoy. "I have a reputation for being cold and unfeeling. When people read my poems, they're flabbergasted!" Nimoy is hosting a group of TV specials; lecturing, acting in repertory and preparing to do a Shakespeare comedy in Pittsburgh. He's making a rare TV game show appearance on "The $25,000 Pyramid" ("That's one of the few games I play well," says Nimoy). And, as you might expect, he reads a lot of science fiction, partly because "I'm expected to be informed to the hilt on things about outer space, and I don't want to look inadequate by being unable to answer."

"What we look for in a candidate is lots of money, an I.Q. of 120 and his promise to keep his mouth shut."—Hal Evry

How People Vote—An Eye-Opening Look At How Experts See It and Shape It

By David Chagall

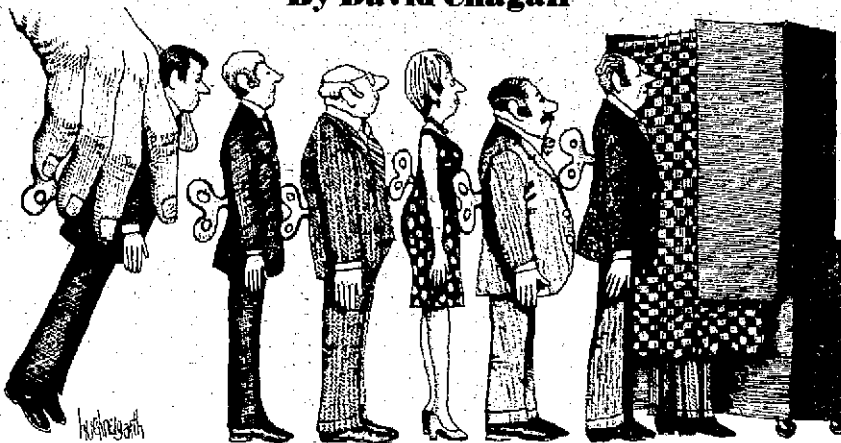

Every year half a million people run for public office. They spend a quarter of a billion dollars, but they haven't got the slightest idea of what's happening. They see flags flying, bands playing and people applauding—but that's not it at all. People don't want to vote. People who vote in an election are almost abnormal!"

Who do you think made these remarks? A wild-eyed radical? A cynical professor or an angry revolutionary? Not even close. Those words came from the mouth of one of the new king-makers in American politics—the campaign specialist.

Hal Evry is an all-round campaign manager. Besides handling candidates, he writes their TV commercials, their radio and printed advertising; he sponsors research and tells them exactly what they must do to win elections. And they listen, for he has won an amazing 93 percent of the campaigns he has masterminded.

The first thing Evry looks for in a candidate is not broad experience, good looks or even dedication.

"What we look for in a candidate is lots of money, an I.Q. of 120 and his promise to keep his mouth shut. The only reason we ask for the 120 I.Q. is so he's smart enough to understand the reasons for keeping his mouth shut. While the campaign is going on, we have him take a long vacation or go down to Latin America and watch how they do things down there—and we do the new campaigns nice and easy. No speeches, no debates. He faces the people only on TV, in the newspapers and by direct mail. Only 23 percent of all normal people know anything about their Congressmen, anyway. Most people can't even tell you their names."

Operating out of an office complex in Los Angeles, Evry works on campaigns all over the country, even in Canada. He claims that some of his successful clients include Gov. George Wallace of Alabama, former Gov. David Hall of Oklahoma, Alaska Senator Ted Stevens, "Mayor Sam" Yorty of Los Angeles. Money, he maintains, is the greatest asset any candidate can have—the more the better.

"I'm a firm believer that poor people should not be allowed to run for public office. When poor people get into campaigns, they spend all the money they have. They get in hock, mortgage their homes, sell their cars and end up losers. It's disastrous! At least when a rich man runs and loses, all he's lost is money and a little ego."

How much money is enough? "Each office is different. For $300,000. A U.S. Senatorial or gubernatorial campaign costs about a dollar a vote."

—Hal Evry

First that money is used to buy polls and research. That is how the manager reads the public's mind.

"People don't want to vote," Evry explains. "It's almost abnormal to vote. In the last California election, there was a 40-percent turnout of registered voters. That means 60 percent didn't vote—and that's only counting registered voters. If we include those who were eligible to vote but never registered, it adds millions more people who did not choose to vote. The candidate getting in office has a mandate from about 20 percent of all the people. So we have to find out what's bothering people —what irritates them. And then we give it back to them out of the mouth of our candidate."

"I get the names and addresses of the people who will vote. These are not the ones who only registered, but the ones who did the actual voting last time. Then we poll them. We do face-to-face interviews. In a state election, you need only a sampling of 1,000 as long as it's typical of the whole. Gallup uses just 1,500 for national polls and there are 3,000 counties to cover."

At this point, the research specialist enters the picture.

Dr. Dan Nimmo, professor at the University of Tennessee, has been called "one of the top political scientists of the 1970's." He consults for Civic Service, Inc. of St. Louis, Mo. As the man responsible for "reading the voter's mind," he first makes sure that his sample of citizens represents all the people who will decide a particular election, then he probes them about their needs and desires.

Dr. Nimmo explains that people reach adulthood carrying a big load of emotional attachments. These attachments—to symbols, political parties, "good guy" and "bad guy" images—all influence the way we see the world around us and how we react to it.

"Popular images develop from the time a person is born. Comes along an election campaign, we evaluate the candidates, issues and the various events through images acquired during our youth."

People have an idea of the ideal candidate in their minds. The pollster goes out to ask questions that will uncover the picture most voters have of this "ideal candidate." Then they

According to campaign expert Hal Evry (left), George Wallace of Alabama; Sam Yorty, former Los Angeles mayor; David Hall, former governor of Oklahoma, and Sen. Ted Stevens of Alaska are among the 93 percent of his clients who have won elections.

compare that with the image voters have of their client, study the differences and create strategies to close the gap between the two.

"Take someone like McGovern," Nimmo says. "People were forming an image of McGovern in the primaries. By the time the general election rolled around, the image they had formed of him was not the kind of image they wanted in a President. And, by that time, there weren't more than a couple of months left to work on any changes. You can't bring about drastic changes in an image overnight."

All the kingmakers agreed that television is the most important way to motivate voters and form images. They do this through paid commercials and publicity from news channels. Behind the scenes, they carefully arrange settings that show off their candidate to the best advantage and paint his image as closely as possible to that

"Comes along an election campaign, we evaluate the candidates through images acquired during our youth."

hecklers up on the stage as a means of trying to handle the problem—and it was successful. But the notion that the campaign men arranged it is totally false."]

Whatever the circumstances, staging is a vital part of creating the ideal image. There are specialists who do nothing but stage settings for public appearances — "crowd managers" whose job it is to make sure the candidate has a full house when he speaks and that he looks good while he's doing it. In the electioneering business, these crowd-raisers are called "advance men," and Jerry Bruno is one of the best. His finest hours came while working for John F. Kennedy.

"Most people do not think of politics in terms of issues," Bruno explains. "They vote for people who strike them as more honest, more exciting, more sexy. That's why advance work is so important. When you show people a man who can draw crowds, you're giving them something recognizable.

"Advance work has an enormous impact on campaigns. The press and media judge candidates by physical facts: How big was the crowd? Were the people turned on or bored? These stories create a sense of momentum or failure. They persuade money-givers to go with a winner or hold back from a loser. When pollsters ask people who they're for, they remember what they've seen or read about a candidate and how he did."

The important thing is to make the candidate look like a winner. So the skilled advance man makes sure the crowds show up. To do this, he puts pressure on labor unions, schools, political workers, people who are getting favors or mythical ideal held by voters.

"If a candidate is unknown, then he can stage a debate with a well-known contender," Nimmo explains. "Almost immediately that raises him in the eyes of the voters. Or if he's the kind of guy who wants to show he can cope with problems on the spot, then you have him do that. Take Ed Muskie back in 1968 when he was running for Vice-President. He staged his addresses in order to get heckled from the audience and then he would turn to the hecklers, bring them up on stage and conduct a mini-debate that went over very well. Those hecklers were arranged, as far as we know."

[When contacted, Senator Muskie's people in Washington did not wholly agree with this analysis. The Senator's aide, Maynard Toll, maintained, "There were no arrangements to have hecklers at those events. That year, there was no problem arranging hecklers—they were just there. Senator Muskie did decide at some point to ask hope for favors from the candidate. Then he distributes many times the number of tickets an arena can hold, just to make sure his candidate won't be facing a lot of empty seats. "The first rule of crowds," Bruno stresses, "is that 25,000 people in Yankee Stadium is a half-empty turnout. But 4,000 people in a hall that seats 3,000 is an overflow."

To make sure the event seems special, kingmakers will use various tricks. When John Kennedy was launching his Presidential campaign, he was late arriving at the Detroit airport where a large crowd had gathered. A rickety snow fence was put up to keep the crowd back.

The plane finally landed and Kennedy descended, when suddenly the mob surged forward, smashed down the fence and swarmed all over him.

"It looked so good on film," says Bruno, "that from then on we made sure the crowds surged over Kennedy. I'd have two men holding a rope by an airport or along a motorcade. Then, at the right moment, they'd just drop the rope and the crowd would rush Kennedy. We made it a standard part of every Kennedy campaign stop."

Lots of money, the winning image and staged events—these are the tactics of the new kingmakers. Or maybe it's not so much that the tactics are new, but only that the kingmakers are more outspoken about them.

Bringing Back the Real America:

An Indiana Town Does It With Style!

In southwestern Indiana, where the Wabash meets the Ohio, sits a little town that claims several unique "firsts" in our nation's heritage: the founding of the first free public school system in America, the first free library, the first kindergarten and the seat of the first geological surveys of the United States. Today experts are looking to New Harmony, Ind., founded in 1814, as an example of one of the more successful models of restoration.

New Harmony (pop. 971) boasts a rich and extraordinary history, having served as a leading Midwestern intellectual center for growing 19th-century America. It is now in the midst of a two-year-long $18-million restoration plan designed to recapture much of its historic beauty and greatness.

Many of the buildings of New Harmony's formative years remain intact and 50 of these key structures are being restored, down to the smallest detail. The downtown shopfronts, auditorium, streets and sidewalks are being refurbished. Even the handsome, contemporary, new multimillion-dollar New Harmony Inn reflects the unencumbered style and simplicity of the community's early design.

One of the remaining structures built during New Harmony's early years is the converted fort-like stone Harmonist Granary, distinguished as the headquarters of the first U.S.

SPARSE BEAUTY

Who wouldn't want to move right into this room? The unadorned white walls are warmed by the natural wood tones of the floor, ceiling and moldings, as well as the working fireplace with brick-colored tiles. New furniture, such as the rush-seated rocking chairs and wooden bed, recalls the functional grace that was typical of Harmonist craftsmen. The tiling of blue-and-white fabric adds a hint of 20th-century elegance to this interpretation of an earlier time.

A room in the New Harmony Inn captures the elemental nature of Harmonist design.

On a shaded tree-lined street stands a typical restored home, designed for a large family's comfort.

RURAL SIMPLICITY

This characteristic frame house (ca. 1820) was built from prefabricated numbered units, like all wooden Harmonist homes. The house contains its original, and effective, insulation—called "Dutch biscuits"—made by wrapping mud and then straw around a flat wooden core.

LA-Z-BOY® IS STILL MAKING THEM LIKE THEY USED TO

How many times have you heard that expression — they're not making them like they used to. And it's true. Back in the good old days you could get your dollar's worth. You could count on quality. Somebody cared.

Somebody still does. La-Z-Boy. We've been crafting chairs with quality and pride in workmanship all along. And we'll never stop. Take our La-Z-Rocker for example. It swivels. It rocks. It turns easily on a specially designed mechanism. It gives you all you could ask for in comfort.

It's built to last. It's made with the very finest materials — like fine fabrics of DuPont Nylon. So the next time you think they're not making them like they used to, think again. And remember La-Z-Boy. The Chair People.™

Geological Survey. Another, the Old Thrall Opera House, was a Harmonist dormitory (numbered dormitories housed the unmarried), which in 1857 was converted into the second-largest theater in Indiana.

An important focal point for the life of New Harmony today is the newly built New Harmony Inn, made possible by philanthropist and visionary Jane Blaffer Owen. Overlooking a pastoral landscape, the Inn comprises an entry house, a charming, modernistic chapel,

The Thrall Opera House, with its Romanesque facade, was restored in 1969 and has been in some form of theatrical use ever since.

and a residence containing 45 guest rooms. Inside, blending harmoniously with the Inn's cultural tradition, are fine contemporary art and furnishings garnered from all over the globe.

Guiding the entire New Harmony restoration is community planner and builder Ralph G. Schwarz. "Through our program," he says, "we hope to achieve a compatibility between free enterprise, economic development of the community, and the preservation of significant historic structures."

Ralph G. Schwarz "The small town is an integral part of our national life. We hope that what is happening in New Harmony now will serve as a model and inspiration for other American communities in the future."

It seems only appropriate that New Harmony, Ind., is being restored and revitalized as the nation celebrates its Bicentennial.

The interior of this restored home often bears witness to lively discussions headed by visiting professors and guest lecturers. Seminars take place here in coordination with part of a continuing series of college programs conducted in New Harmony.

Built to take almost anything you can dish out.

An exclusive 9-year service contract on its incredibly durable interior.

After nine years and millions of dollars of research and development we can make this unprecedented promise:

In addition to the General Electric warranty, if the PermaTuf™ tub or door liner should fail to contain water due to a manufacturing defect such as cracking, chipping, peeling or rusting within the nine (9)-year contract period (ending ten years from purchase date), General Electric will repair or replace the tub or door WITHOUT CHARGE for either PARTS or LABOR unless failure is due to misuse or abuse.

This Service Contract applies to dishwashers with PermaTuf tub and door liner installed and retained for home use within the 48 contiguous states or the District of Columbia. Not applicable to Alaska, Hawaii, Virgin Islands, Guam, American Samoa, Canal Zone or Puerto Rico.

Plus a Full 30-Day Money-Back Warranty.

Buy your Potscrubber II, 950 or 1050, dishwasher from a participating dealer in the 48 states or D.C. and give it normal care. If you are not completely satisfied (and you'll be the judge), notify the dealer from whom you purchased the dishwasher within 30 days and present your certificate. He will take it back and refund the money.

POTS UNRETouched

It will help you out of some tough scrapes. Before you put in your baked-on pots and pans, just tip off the larger scraps. There's no pre-rinsing or pre-scraping at all. A Soft Food Disposer pulverizes the remaining scraps and flushes them away.

And the GE Potscrubber II Dishwasher will clean them thoroughly, even with a full load.

It can even save you energy.

GE has a Rinse and Hold Cycle that rinses loose soil from partial loads and lets you postpone turning on your dishwasher till you have a full load.

Besides this, the Potscrubber II Dishwasher has a Power Saver Drying Option. When you press the "Heat Off" button, the dishes dry naturally by their residual heat.

A few words about sound and space.

The Potscrubber II Dishwasher is remarkably quiet thanks to its glass fiber insulation.

It's also got a door opening that's a full 3½ inches larger than some competitive models. Even with all its space, it will fit right in where your old dishwasher was.

And because you sometimes have very tall glasses to wash in the top rack or very large platters to wash in the bottom one, there's a Dial-A-Level® Rack which can be adjusted up or down.

GE Servicemen don't like to keep a lady waiting.

When you buy GE, you get Customer Care® Service.

Our pledge that wherever you are, or go, in the 48 contiguous states, you'll find a qualified GE serviceman nearby. Should you ever need one.

Accept Good Housekeeping's "strict editorial judgment" for Potscrubber II dishwasher performance.

They gave it their Consumers' "Limited Warranty Seal."

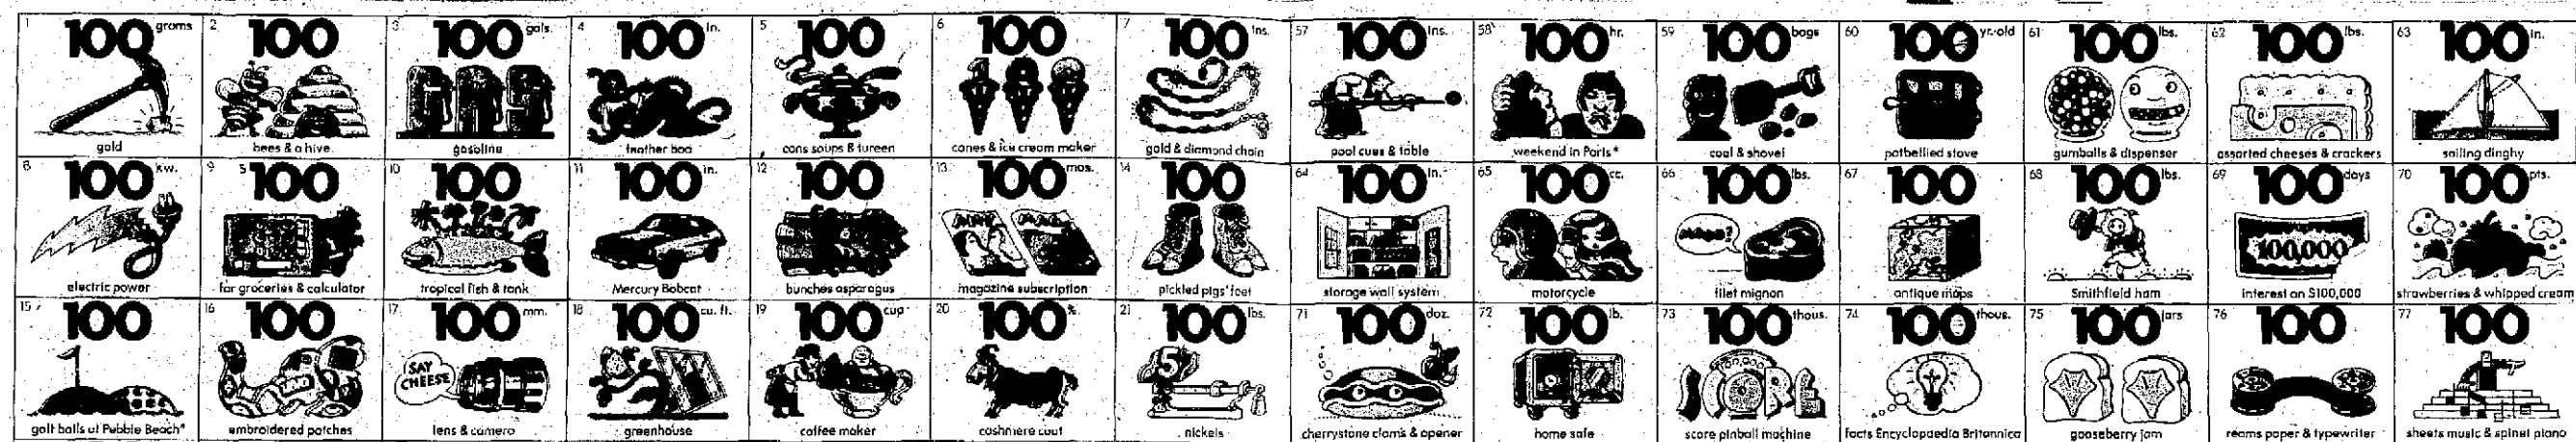

And take advantage of a special limited time offer. This historic pewter plate free when you buy your 950 or 1050 Potscrubber II from your GE dealer. 9¾ inches in diameter, a bicentennial collector's item, a limited edition registered by serial number with International Silver Company. With a retail value of $75.

But hurry. This special offer from General Electric is limited.

Oh, the disadvantages of having to make a choice of Benson & Hedges 100's sweepstakes.

But, oh, the advantages of winning any one of them.
Will you choose $100 a year for life? A new 1976 car? One of seven trips for two? Or a more energetic prize: 100 kilowatts of electricity, gallons of gas, bags of coal or logs to burn? Do you crave gooseberry jam? Smithfield ham? Anything from soup to nuts? Or one of our other 83 prizes?

In any case, any winner may have a change of mind and ask for 100 ft. of dollar bills ($200) instead.

Each winner will get a letter telling exactly what the prize includes, what choice there is (if any) of style or color or flavor, and what options there are on deliveries of perishable goods.

Please read the rules carefully and note especially that each sweepstakes must be entered individually, with each entry mailed separately in its own envelope, with the sweepstakes number in the lower left corner.

The longer you take to choose, the surer you are to be confused. That's one more of the disadvantages of Benson & Hedges 100's.

OFFICIAL RULES—NO PURCHASE REQUIRED

1. Write the number of the sweepstakes you wish to enter in the space provided on the official entry blank, or on a plain piece of 3" x 5" paper.
2. Hand-print your name, address and zip code on your entry, include with it the bottom panels from two empty packs of Benson & Hedges 100's, Regular or Menthol or the words "Benson & Hedges 100's" hand-printed on a plain piece of paper.
3. Enter as often as you wish, but you may enter only one sweepstakes per entry, and each entry must be mailed separately, to Benson & Hedges 100's, P.O. Box 2144, Westbury, New York 11591. Entries must be postmarked by January 31, 1976 and received by February 10, 1976.
4. IMPORTANT: You must write the number of the sweepstakes you are entering on the outside of the envelope, in the lower left-hand corner.
5. Winners will be selected in random drawings from entries for sweepstakes by National Judging Institute, Inc., an independent judging organization whose decisions are final. Odds of winning will be determined by the number of entries received for each sweepstakes. Winners will be asked to execute an affidavit of release and eligibility. All prizes will be awarded. Only one prize to a family. Liability for taxes is the sole responsibility of the individual winners. In lieu of any prize, winner may elect to receive a cash award of $200.

6. Contest open to all U.S. residents over 21 years of age, except employees and their families of Philip Morris Inc., its advertising agencies and National Judging Institute, Inc. This offer is subject to all federal, state and local laws. Void in Idaho, Missouri, and wherever prohibited, restricted or taxed.

7. For a list of winners, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to BENSON & HEDGES WINNERS LIST, P.O. Box 2442, Westbury, New York 11591. List will be available by May 1, 1976.

The what and why of the Catholic Church in 36 easy pages.

Whether you're searching for a deeper faith to live by or simply want a better understanding of the beliefs of your Catholic neighbors, you will find absorbing reading in our pamphlet entitled, "This Is The Catholic Church."

It answers simply and clearly such often-asked questions as "Why do Catholics go to Confession?" "Why do they regard the Mass as the form of worship most pleasing to God?" and "Why do they feel that the organized Church is essential to God's plan for man's salvation?"

You'll learn, too, the origin and significance of the Seven Sacraments and why Catholics attach such vital importance to them... the authority by which the Pope, Bishops and priests guide the Church... and how the Apostles' Creed is, in effect, a summary of basic Catholic doctrine.

A CHAIR—AND THEN SOME

Extra space for entertaining and a corner for canning foods are easier to find when you own a La-Z-Boy wall recliner. This chair adapts easily to any room in the house. It needs less than one inch clearance from the wall, because a special mechanism causes the chair to glide forward, instead of back, into any reclining position. Better still, footrest is operated independently to facilitate positions from upright to fully prone.

Shrinking space within today's interiors demands furniture that doubles its function. Here are some imaginative new pieces designed for sitting, lounging and sleeping.

Furniture That Doesn't Just Sit There!

A "CHAIR-TABLE" CONVERTS TO A BED

This unique one-piece design by Frank Petersille of Spherical Furniture turns into a lightweight all-foam full-sized bed, available in firm or extra-firm. For sleeping, remove button-lifted pillow and circular glass accessory, flip over top section, and it becomes a bed! Sheets are held firmly all around by a unique pocketing band (patent pending). Fabric in a Haitian-type weave is fashioned of Dacron polyester by Kirk Brummel. Formica cabinet by Schoofield. Sheets in a watercolor design by Dong Kingman for Fieldcrest. Contemporary color TV by Magnavox.

Star Chat

Wife, Mother, Authoress... A Chat With the "Other" Julie Andrews

By Peer J. Oppenheimer

It seems that I meet Julie Andrews about once a year—in Hawaii, London, Switzerland, at parties or (this time) for breakfast at the Beverly Hills Hotel. As always, Julie was gracious, well-dressed and attentive, but she seemed preoccupied. As I found out, the source of her preoccupation was two events that have taken place in her life: the adoption of a Vietnamese orphan girl and the publication of her second children's book, "The Last of the Really Great Whangdoodles."

FAMILY WEEKLY: What made you decide to adopt a Vietnamese baby?

JULIE: My husband and I knew we wanted another child, and we realized we were not getting any younger. We felt now was the time to do it. And my friend Mia Farrow was so happy with the baby she had adopted from Vietnam, we decided to try the same agency. [Julie and her husband are now in the process of adopting a second Vietnamese baby, seven-months-old Joanna Lynn.]

FW: How did your daughter, Emma react?

JULIE: It was a bit difficult at first because until now, Emma, who is 12, has been the youngest and has gotten most of the attention. But now it is all right.

FW: Is London still your home?

JULIE: Not anymore. In fact, it was the baby's arrival that caused us to move to Switzerland for good. We wanted some quiet place where we could settle down. Although we rent a place in London, Switzerland is our home. We have a beautiful chalet in Gstaad. I enjoy looking after it.

FW: What do you mean, "looking after it"?

JULIE: We have a girl who comes in daily, but I take care of the baby, whom we've named Amy, and I take care of the cooking and do some of the cleaning as well.

FW: What made you decide to write "The Last of the Really Great Whangdoodles"?

JULIE: The first book gave me so much pleasure that I wanted to write a second.

FW: What made you write the first one?

JULIE: It was a repayment of a debt—a promise I'd made to Jenny [Blake Edwards's daughter Jenny]. When Blake and I were doing "Darling Lili" in Paris, Jenny was with us. She kind of got out of hand. Her room was in a constant mess, she wouldn't brush her teeth or take care of her laundry. It was just a mess. I wasn't doing too well, either.

"We made a deal: I would stop swearing if Jenny would put her things away and brush her teeth. If I lost, I promised I'd write her a story."

FW: How come?

JULIE: Well, I used to swear a lot because I was under great tension. Anyway, whenever Jenny did something wrong, she had to forfeit something. One day she said, "What about you when you do something wrong?" "Like what?" I asked. "Well, you swear an awful lot," she told me. She was right! Tension was really no excuse. So we made a deal: I would stop swearing if she would put her things away and brush her teeth and all that. If she lost, she would have to forfeit something, and if I lost, I promised I'd write her a story.

FW: And you lost?

JULIE: I am sorry to say it took me just ten minutes before I used a swear word, and Jenny kept after me until I started to write the story I'd promised her. First I wrote just a page. Then I elaborated. It took me a year and a half to finish "Mandy." It was a point of honor, and doubly important because I was her step-mother and didn't want her to lose faith in me.

STS has worked near miracles with thousands of people. (Just look at some of the pictures and comments on this page). With the Slim-Through-Sleep Plan you won't feel the least bit deprived. loved. Never again will you have to contend with pills that leave you jittery; exercises that leave you exhausted and achy; food cravings that have you climbing the walls. Spend just 5 minutes with the STS plan the first evening you get it and we promise you results in weight loss that will startle you. Without suffering a moment of anxiety you will shed pound after pound quickly and effortlessly — and you'll never regain that weight again.

Sandra Glass lost 99 pounds! "I had let myself go to pot, weightwise, and now I have been able to bring my weight down to the right level and bring up my spirits and my life. I previously weighed 241 pounds and now I weigh a gorgeous 142!"

Domenick Griesti, teenager, lost 52 pounds! "I weighed 211 pounds and am now down to 159. I have tried other methods to lose weight, but have never been able to stick with them. Being a teenager, you have no idea how much happier I am now."

Pat T., 30 lbs. in 3 months: 3 months ago,

• Other methods require a change in dining out and party habits — STS doesn't change the food you eat regardless of the occasion.

• Other methods have a yo-yo effect, weight comes off, and goes right back on — with STS weight stays off permanently.

The only thing now between you and weight-loss success is the effort it takes to mail the coupon below. Do it today and you won't be sorry. We guarantee it!

Meet the Creator Of The STS Method. Frank Rocco, R. H., is a world-renowned registered therapist, and his clinical success with people who had never before been able to lose weight has been phenomenal.

Mr. Rocco's contention is: "Any person can lose weight with this plan as long as they have the sincere desire to lose. That is the only prerequisite. They can lose as much as they want, five pounds to a hundred pounds, and there is no medication involved." He has proven this in case after case, where he has given new hope and new happiness to people who had tried dozens of other weight-loss methods without lasting success.

Frank Rocco is recognized as a major authority in his field and has been the subject of many newspaper articles and television shows.

I started and not to sound like an ad, I really am a new person. Very happy!"

Harry C., 51 lbs. in 2½ months: "There are no nasty after effects. I've been on about five or six diets, all of which involved medication, and I always lost weight. But I didn't like the feeling. The drugs would make me grouchy after the pills wore off... Besides, I always went up again after I stopped using the pills."

Why The STS Plan Is Better Than Any So-called Diet You've Ever Tried

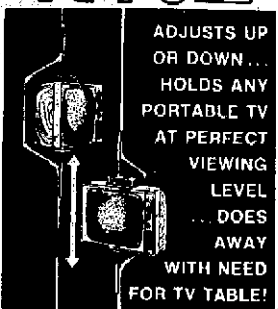

- Diet pills make you tense and nervous — STS leaves you relaxed and energetic
- Diet Plans require change in eating habits — with STS you eat all the foods you ate before
- Almost every weight-loss method requires will power — STS eliminates that painful barrier
- Other plans require a different regimen for active, non-active, young and old — STS works remarkable results

Julie Andrews

Continued

FW: When did you find time to write?
JULIE: Usually when Jenny was in school. I did it in longhand. It is still the only way I can write.

FW: Your book was written under the name of Julie Edwards rather than Julie Andrews. Did this cause any problems?

JULIE: It sure did. I had a lot of pressure from the publishers. They said the public would know Julie Andrews, but not Julie Edwards. But first of all, I was writing the book for Jenny, and secondly, I am an Edwards. And without Blake I never would have finished it.

FW: They recently reissued "The Sound of Music." How do you feel about that movie now, ten years later?

JULIE: I like it better than before. First of all, it was superbly made. And it expressed simplicity, love and devotion—old-fashioned values, but so much a part of the nice things in life.

FW: Do you think the tremendous success of "The Sound of Music" will bring back musicals?

JULIE: I hope so. I'd love to do another.

FW: How have you changed since you made "The Sound of Music"?

JULIE: I've matured, which is as it should be. When I was in Salzburg for "Music," for instance, I used to waste a lot of time. I wasn't wise or mature enough to take advantage of what I could have done. Like going to museums. Also, it was a very difficult time in my life.

FW: Why?

JULIE: I had problems with my marriage [Julie was previously married to costume designer Tony Walton] and I had become a recluse. I wasn't very sure of myself. In short, I wasn't really happy.

FW: Are you happy now?

JULIE: Terribly.

FW: Is it hard working for a director you happen to be married to?

JULIE: It's easier now. Actually, we've only made two films—"Darling Lili" and "The Tamarind Seed." When we made "Darling Lili," we weren't married, and we were more careful with each other. Now I can say whatever comes to my mind.

FW: Can you be specific?

JULIE: Well, there are pitfalls in a relationship like this. As a wife, I might do something which would be untenable as an actress. Like when Blake blocked out a scene in the first film we made together, I would keep my mouth shut if I didn't agree. In the second film, I burst out with wifely suggestions—but I always made it look like I wasn't interfering!

FW: Do you ever think you are?

JULIE: Well, Blake has never said so. I watch that I don't go too far. There can only be one director on a film. I'm not about to overstep my bounds—even if I am his wife!

Don't let your fingers be bare just because you don't want to spend $1,000 a carat (or more) for a diamond ring. Our Gemfires are so elegant only a diamond expert, or someone with a powerful magnifier can be really sure they aren't natural diamonds.

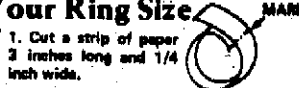

Gemfires are polished and precision-faceted by master diamond cutters to bring out their full fire and brilliance. They are then set by master craftsmen, by hand, in expensive-looking, open-back mountings so the base of the stone is exposed for maximum reflection of light.

You don't have to be afraid that Gemfires will be phony-looking plastic or paste jewelry. They gleam like diamonds formed deep within the earth by tremendous heat and pressure. Yet they are free of the imperfections found in most natural diamonds. There are no cracks, no flaws, no spots of impurities to mar their sparkling beauty. We invite you to wear a Gemfire. If you, your family or your friends can tell the difference between it and a natural diamond return it to us within 30 days and we'll gladly send you your money back.

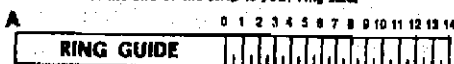

You're in good company when you wear Gemfires. Today, even millionaires wear simulated diamonds and keep their precious jewels hidden away in bank vaults to prevent them from being lost or stolen.

Gemfires make a lifetime gift — and the gift of a lifetime.

How to Find Your Ring Size

1. Cut a strip of paper 3 inches long and 1/4 inch wide.
2. Wrap the strip around the finger that is to wear the ring. Then place a dot on the strip where it meets the end.
3. Place the dot on the strip of paper at "A" on the ring guide. The number at the end of the strip is your ring size.

Our "NO RISK" Guarantee

Order without risk. If not completely satisfied within 30 days, return by INSURED MAIL for full refund of purchase price.

GLOSSARY OF TERMS

HEAVY GOLD ELECTROPLATE (HGE) — this mounting uses karat gold (either white or yellow) that is electrically bonded to the mounting after it is formed and the gold, by government standard, is 14 times thicker than the designation "gold electroplate".

STERLING SILVER (SS) — the mounting is 92.5% pure silver, 7.5% other metals for strength, and to eliminate tarnishing is lightly plated with precious rhodium.

CARAT (CT) — a measure of weight for a diamond — however, Gemfires are given approximate carat values based on size (not weight). In other words, a 1 carat Gemfire is approximately the same size as a 1 carat diamond.

GOLD FILLED (GF) — a lamination of base metal placed between sheets of gold.

MOUNTING — MTG.

DR. JAMES RYAN
The angst of childhood

A pediatrician talks about how parents often oppress their children: "We have an inability to recognize that children are individuals. We treat children as possessions, as things, rather than as separate beings, and our actions speak far louder than our rhetoric. In our homes, our churches, our schools, our courts, the child is confronted with paternalism. We use our youngsters as scapegoats for adult frustrations, and too often we sweeten our punishments and denials with the hypocritical avowal, 'It's for the child's own good.' As the child detects this phoniness, resentment and rebellion germinate, only to flower when the pressures of this 'might-makes-right' oppression become unbearable. Complete self-determination for children is not desirable, but a degree of independence is not synonymous with permissiveness. Freedom is the ultimate goal of childhood." The speaker is Dr. James H. Ryan, a pediatrician in Kankakee, Ill. Dr. Ryan has written a personal account of his experiences as a children's physician. "Fablem, Parents and Pandemonium" (Thomas Y. Crowell, $7.95).

HAVE DOG, WILL TRAVEL
Cute can be dangerous

Richmond, Tenn., residents were outraged when they first saw a dog riding on the roof of a car. They charged the pet's owner, Joe Peacock, with animal cruelty. But the shouts died down when dog Charlie showed everyone that he was happier on the roof than inside. Peacock explained how it all started: "About two years ago, I was leaving home on a short sales trip. Normally I took Charlie everywhere. But he was covered with mud, so I told him to stay. As I drove away, that crazy hound jumped on the roof. I stopped but he stood his ground.

Since then, he's refused to ride as a passenger, and jumps happily on the hood whenever I get in the car. I drive slowly, of course." But isn't Charlie a road hazard to other drivers who are startled by the sight of him?

NEIL SEDAKA
It's better to be human

Neil Sedaka has sold over 25 million records and written some 700 songs, but things haven't always been so good. "I grew up in Brooklyn, but I couldn't play baseball because I was studying classical piano. You can imagine that I wasn't the most popular kid. Being short and wearing glasses didn't help either. I think that's why I got interested in rock music—to be accepted. So, every day my friend Howard Greenfield came over, and we wrote a song every day. Three years later, when I was 18, Connie Francis recorded our first hit, 'Stupid Cupid.'" Neil still collaborates with Howard (17 years later), and after an eight-year absence, he's back with two new hits. How does it feel? "When I got married in 1962," he says, "I had to keep it a secret because in those days rock stars weren't allowed to disappoint their fans by being human. So my wife Leba and I couldn't travel together, or she had to pretend she was my sister. This put a terrible strain on us. Now entertainers are allowed to be 'real' people." Neil's latest album is "The Hungry Years," on Rocket.

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY By Richard Armour

PLATFORM SHOES

My wife bought some platform shoes, With heels that are really high. I used to look down on her manfully, But now she's as tall as I.

I'll have to buy platform shoes myself Or stand on my tiptoes instead. For not to be taller, a bit, than my wife Is something, I tell you, I dread.

And why is this not being taller so bad? That height was the only advantage I had.

Carried away with his sermon, the young preacher fixed the congregation with his eyes, and shouted, "And I say unto you, if there be sinners among you, may your tongue cleave to the woof of your mow!"

—Samuel J. Stannard

A janitor of a railroad station decided to get married in a large room on the upper floor of the building. So many people showed up that the floor collapsed. Moral: Never marry above your station.

—Dorothea Kent

Before leaving the office, an employer gave instructions to his new secretary. "I may be back after lunch," he told her, "and then again, I may not."

"Yes, sir," she responded. "Is that definite?"

—Laurie Olinghouse

"Didn't Mrs. Brown look pleased when I told her she didn't look a day older than her daughter?"

"I really didn't notice. I was busy watching the expression on her daughter's face."

—Conrad Fiorello

My two-year-old grandson proudly showed me a paper he had scribbled over with crayons. I took it and said, "My, what a fine little boy and dog you drew!"

He grabbed back his paper and after a very close inspection of the scribbles asked, "Where did they go?"

LITTLE EMILY

"Of course it also means we'd have a mouse and a duck in the Senate, but those are problems we can iron out later..."

To the 56,000,000 people who smoke cigarettes.

A lot of people have been telling you not to smoke, especially cigarettes with high 'tar' and nicotine. But smoking provides you with a pleasure you don't want to give up.

Naturally, we're prejudiced. We're in the business of selling cigarettes.

But there is one overriding fact that transcends whether you should or shouldn't smoke and that fact is that you do smoke.

And what are they going to do about that?

They can continue to exhort you not to smoke. Or they might look reality in the face and recommend that, if you smoke and want low 'tar' and nicotine in a cigarette, you smoke a cigarette like Vantage.

And we'll go along with that, because there is no other cigarette like Vantage. Except Vantage.

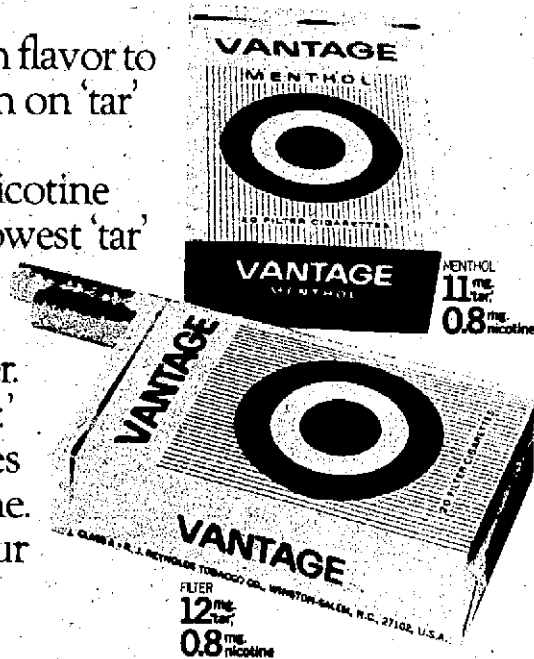

Vantage has a unique filter that allows rich flavor to come through it and yet substantially cuts down on 'tar' and nicotine.

Not that Vantage is the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette. (But you probably wouldn't like the lowest 'tar' and nicotine cigarette anyway.)

The plain truth is that smoke has to come through a filter if taste is to come through a filter. And where there is taste there has to be some 'tar'.

But Vantage is the only cigarette that gives you so much flavor with so little 'tar' and nicotine.

So much flavor that you'll never miss your high 'tar' cigarette.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

FILTER: 12 mg. 'tar', 0.8 mg. nicotine, MENTHOL: 11 mg. 'tar', 0.8 mg. nicotine, av. per cigarette, FTC Report MAR. '75.
